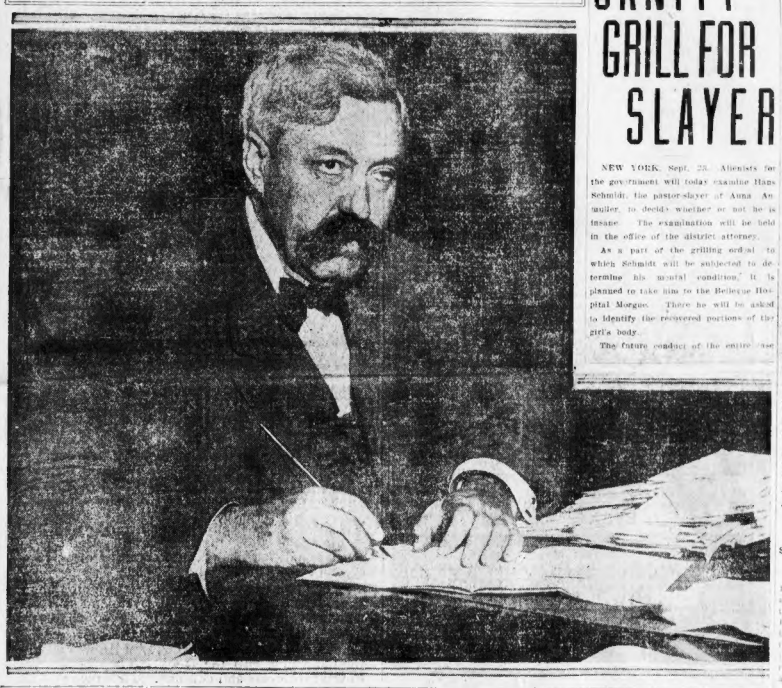
THAW FACES FELKER

FELKER, ARBITER OF THAW FATE

POSED ESPECIALLY FOR SEARS OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN



SANITY GRILL FOR SLAYER

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. Alienists for the government will today examine Hans Schmidt, the pastor-slayer of Anna Aumuller, to decide whether or not he is insane. The examination will be held in the office of the district attorney.

As a part of the grilling ordeal to which Schmidt will be subjected to determine his mental condition, it is planned to take him to the Bellevue Hospital Morgue. There he will be asked to identify the recovered portions of the girl's body.

The future conduct of the entire case

Bishop Lawrence Confined to Bed

Ill Since Funeral of His Grandson at Albany.

Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts is ill at his home, No. 122 Commonwealth avenue. A few days ago he returned from the funeral of his grandson at Albany and since then has been confined to his bed. It is expected that he will be able to attend the eleventh anniversary of his consecration, which will be observed October 5th in St. Paul's Cathedral. He is also to preach the sermon before the general convention in New York city the following day.

Calf-Displaying Skirt Stops Train

Crowd Swarms Over Track to Get Closer View.

HINTON, W. Va., Sept. 23.—Emerging from a mob of Hinton's citizens which had taken possession of the Chesapeake & Ohio depot in their endeavor to see the latest dress creation worn by Miss Nannie Wheeler, Henry Wilkens said:

"Well, we've had slit skirts down here, but that's the first I've ever seen with a calf exposure."

Apparently oblivious Miss Wheeler, on her way to the station, tripped gaily along and at each step the slit in the back of her skirt, would open, revealing Miss Wheeler's shapely silk stockinged legs.

At the station so anxious was the crowd to get a closer view that the train was held up fifteen minutes by the throng which covered the tracks.

Bryan Finds Wine in Glass--Leaves

Secretary Stops Toast to Frenchmen at Banquet.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Secretary Bryan proved his loyalty to the temperance cause last night at the dinner to the representatives of the Permanent Exposition Commission of France, given by J. J. Dickinson, personal representative of Secretary Bryan. Mr. Bryan toasted the French commissioners, and raised his glass. The French representatives rose to salute.

Bryan discovered that his glass contained champagne. He lowered it. The French envoys stopped drinking. Bryan left the dinner immediately.

BETTING ODDS FAVOR FREEDOM FOR FUGITIVE

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Harry Thaw faced Governor Felker at eleven o'clock today, when the long-awaited extradition hearing began.

Harry was confident. He looked better than at any time he has been here, in a brand new blue suit and with a cheerful smile. The general opinion was that Harry would win. Two to one wagers for Thaw were freely offered, with no takers.

Mrs. Shaw Is Moose Primary Candidate

The name of Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw 2nd, a suffragist and one of the most young matrons in Boston society, was today written in on the ballot as a delegate to the State convention of the progressive party at Beverly. This success for her cause was brought about by at least a dozen Progressives of Ward 6, known as the "Millionaires' Ward."

Women Plan Part of Columbus Parade

Anti-Suffragists Decline to Participate in Parade.

Mrs. Frank A. Young, president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, heads a committee of gathered today, to plan for the women's division of the Columbus Day parade. She has as assistants Mrs. Ruth Silva Haskell, Mrs. Mary Agnes Walsh, Miss Agnes Ryan, Miss Mary Caroline Crawford, Miss Katherine Walsh and Mrs. M. Ella Gleason.

The members of the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association have declined to take part in the parade. The suffragists, however, take a different view, and will be represented by several floats. The Women's Journal, Alice Stone Blackwell's publication, official organ of the suffrage movement, will have two floats.

Miss Pulitzer Weds Tutor of Brother

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Miss Constance Helen Pulitzer, younger daughter of the late Joseph Pulitzer, has been married at Lake Tahoe, Cal., to William Grant Rundle of London, a former tutor to Herbert Pulitzer, the youngest son of the late Mr. Pulitzer.

Peary Denies His Daughter Is to Wed

"MacMillan Is a Fine Fellow," Explorer Adds.

The AMERICAN last Sunday, in common with other Boston papers, printed in good faith an announcement sent out from Portland, Me., of the engagement of Almighty Peary, daughter of Rear Admiral Peary, to Donald MacMillan, the explorer.

The report proves to be unfounded and is denied by Admiral Peary in a letter to the AMERICAN today.

The young lady is neither engaged nor has she made a debut, as was stated in the dispatch.

"Miss Peary is in better taste," MacMillan is a fine fellow and we all admire him, but my daughter's attitude is not changed to him or to any one else. My daughter has yet to make her formal bow to society."

Asked Wife to Let Him Have Affinity

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Aubrey Lauston seeks a divorce from her husband, the author, alleging he asked her to let him have a Belgian girl as his affinity. Mrs. Lauston alleges her husband defends his courses, saying: "Such relationships are deemed free from any moral objection among many European people."

Gave Up Chautauqua Platform to Stay at Congress Session.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Speaker Champ Clark was asked today why he declined Chautauqua lecture engagements that would have netted him $15,000 a year. He said:

"As Speaker of the House of Representatives I feel it necessary to preside over the House. I had been elected by the Democratic members to this office. Its duties have kept me busy. That is the reason why I did not go on the Chautauqua platform this Summer. We are here still."

Niland Protests Foreign Workmen

When Thomas A. Niland, a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the House in Ward 1, East Boston, stopped at the voting quarters in Precinct 8 today, he declared he was surprised at what he saw. "A gang of men was at work painting the schoolhouse fence," he declared, "and not one of them could speak English. Scores of my constituents stood idle. I complained to Schoolhouse Commissioner Joseph Lomasney, who happened to drive up at the time, and he promised to investigate."

James S. Murphy Strangely Missing

Former Boston Man Disappears from His Los Angeles Home.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23.—James Shields Murphy, a native of Boston but for several years past prominent in Los Angeles, a broker and real estate man, suddenly disappeared from his home in Eagle Rock last Thursday and his wife suspects foul play.

Murphy had not been well for some time which may account for his strange absence.

The fact that he had a large amount of money on his person when he left home is one of the main reasons for the fear that he may have been waylaid and robbed.

Mr. Murphy's father, who lives at No. 18 Sagamore street, Dorchester, has been appealed to to aid in the search. James Shields Murphy started in Boston the first golf journal to be published in the Hans Schmidt, it has been learned here, is the father of two children, who are said to be in Munich. By most of his relatives here, Schmidt is believed to be quite sane.

JEROME FAILS TO FILE NEW CHARGE.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—At a conference with Governor Felker and Secretary of State Person, just before the Thaw extradition hearing today, Jerome failed to file additional papers in the case, thus ending a report that a stronger and amended extradition charge would be made.

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, Harry's mother, entered the State Senate chamber at 10:40, escorted by her son, Josiah Thaw. Mrs. Thaw glanced once at Jerome, Harry's "Nemesis," then turned her gaze away.

HARRY IS GREATLY CHEERED BY MOTHER

and down at the breakfast table at 8:10. After breakfast the Governor went directly to the State House, carrying a satchel which was said to be stuffed with papers bearing on the Thaw case. The Governor did not see Harry at breakfast.

Harry was also up in good season. He dressed with unusual care. He had a new blue suit, ordered especially for this extradition crisis. His hair, neatly cut the evening before, was brushed nicely.

Harry never looked better since he landed in New Hampshire, in the opinion of the newspapermen who have been on his trail. He did not seem nervous, though his eyes were unusually bright.

Harry's good appearance was also owing to his optimistic state of mind. He felt sure of winning at the extradition hearing and of beating Jerome, just as he had at the Federal hearing in Littleton.

Then he was encouraged by his mother's presence. He took it as the best kind of an omen to have here the one person on earth who has stuck to him through thick and thin, good and bad.

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw did not come down to breakfast. She shuns publicity and the crowds as much as possible. A breakfast was sent to her room. Later Harry joined her and the two had a final and reassuring chat before the hearing.

Harry's lawyers, Judge Chase and the others, held a final conference before leaving the hotel for the State House.

Crowd Eager to See Thaw.

Meanwhile a crowd was gathering in front of the hotel. At 10:30 five hundred people were massed in front of the main entrance, waiting for a glimpse of Harry. Others were strung along the street, right up to the entrance to the State House grounds. The crowd was distinctly a Thaw one. All the popular talk was: "The Governor wants to turn down Jerome and give a decision for Harry."

There was much disappointment at the closed hearing, but the Governor decided that it was best to restrict the session to the necessary officials and the press. Cards of admission were issued by Secretary of State Edward M. Pearson, with instructions to the police to let none in the Senate chamber, where the hearing took place, who did not have such a card.

City Marshal George Kimball called out the night squad of police to help the day squad keep the State House clear of intruders. Orders were given that no crowd should be allowed to congregate on the State House grounds, to say nothing of getting into the building itself.

The Governor was determined that the hearing should have all necessary dignity and be devoid of any "free show" element.

There was a lot of quiet betting on the result of the extradition hearing.

Odds of 5 to 2, and even of 2 to 1, were offered on Harry.

Those who thought Jerome would win wanted odds of 1 to 2, or even 3 to 5, before they would put up any money.

The doors of the Senate Chamber were opened at 10:45. Those fortunate enough to have tickets swarmed in and took seats. Tables were reserved for press and counsel.

Harry came to the State House under the official escort of United States Marshal Eugene F. Note of Farmington and Sheriff Holman Drew of Coos County. These two had been named as his keepers by Judge Aldrich at Littleton. With them, also, came Special Officer Clark D. Stevens.

Opening of Session.

Governor Felker entered the Senate Chamber at 11 o'clock and took the chair of the President of the Senate.

Harry was seated be- to the right of keepers and counsel. The latter included the veteran for nineteen years a member of Hampshire Supreme Court; Alexander of Lancaster, George F. Morrill of Sharifell's partners, Joseph A. Doniger and former Governor William A. Stone of Pennsylvania, personal representative of the Thaw family.

Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Kennedy of Dutchess County were accompanied by Bernard Jacobs.

There was a brief preliminary conference to arrange the order of speaking, with the Thaw forces scheduled to open with an argument by Judge Chase.

The arrival of his mother was the one thing necessary to complete Harry's gladness. His hopes mounted with every passing minute and he cried exultingly:

"No Mattewan for me."

Governor Felker, who had seen Harry at supper at the Eagle House the night before, made a final statement prior to the hearing, thus:

I shall consult with our Attorney-General before I sign papers of any kind. I have received letters from all over the State. The majority favor Thaw. But I will not be swayed by such correspondence.

"When our friends in New Hampshire want," Harry said, "is the defeat of this dishonest attempt to extradite me. Everyone knows this charge is only a subterfuge to be dropped as soon as I should reach New York. The Grand Jury in Dutchess County know it is a fraud and already have refused to indict. The requisition is too flimsy, and my mother and I hope at last to go home in peace.

"My place is in Pennsylvania, where I belong, and where my mother lives. My desire is to see her again in peace and comfort, such as we enjoyed before we became the target for the attacks of a few rich and influential gentlemen in New York. We hope people in New Hampshire will help us on our way home."

Mrs. Thaw, patting her son's hand, declared:

"We have no fear of the ultimate outcome. No fair-minded person or fair-minded official wants to see my boy sent back to that awful insane asylum."

Three things may happen at the Governor's extradition hearing here today.

First—William Travers Jerome, who made an abortive charge of "bad faith" against the New York attorneys in the Federal Courts last week, may himself be charged with bad faith and forced to pledge the word of New York State that Thaw will be put on trial if extradited on the present charge of conspiracy.

Second—The hearing may be postponed upon application of either side.

Third—The Dutchess County Grand Jury, having refused to indict, Jerome may present a new charge.

Governor Felker may not give his decision at the conclusion of today's hearing, which will not be open to the public. Several of the attorneys declared they did not look for a decision today, but expect that the Governor will devote considerable time to a consideration of the case as he sees it, not in the light of what he may have heard or read heretofore, but in view of what may be recited at today's hearing.

Thaw Meets His Mother.

For the first time since the flight from Matteawan Thaw has met his mother. Her second attempt to reach the side of her son on his more successful than the first, when, although ill, she made the long trip from Cresson, Pa., to Montreal, in the expectation of his coming there on a Canadian court proceeding. His banishment, with startling suddenness, frustrated this attempt.

At the end of a dreary, rainy day Thaw sat in the guarded famous "throne room" at the Eagle Hotel. A timid knock sounded on the panel. The fugitive opened the door himself and faced a plainly garbed woman, whose figure was bowed with the weight of years, and whose visage was framed in an aureole of pure white hair.

"Harry!"

"Mother!"

Mrs. Thaw in "Blue Room."

The two exclamations were as one. The "boy" stooped and kissed his mother upon the right cheek. It was the first time in weeks that Mrs. Thaw had seen the son who is to her more than life itself.

Mrs. Thaw, accompanied by her son Josiah, and a maid, arrived at Concord in the day coach of an accommodation train at 7:25 o'clock. She had not been expected until late in the evening, but had unhesitatingly chosen poor train accommodations in order to get to her son the sooner.

Mrs. Thaw and her party were given the "blue room" at the Eagle Hotel.

Mrs. Thaw and Harry talked together until almost midnight.

At the conclusion of her talk with Harry, Mrs. Thaw said: "I hope Judge Chase will thoroughly convince the New Hampshire authorities that my son has been unjustly prosecuted by these New York officials, and force them to explain the animus of their pursuit.

"I believe the stupidity of New Hampshire is with us in our desire to secure justice, and at the same time compel an explanation."

No Indictment Returned.

Of especial interest in view of the fact that today's proceedings are based upon the request of the State of New York for the extradition of Thaw on a charge of conspiracy in connection with his escape from Matteawan, is the news from Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Here the Dutchess County Grand Jury had adjourned for two weeks without having found an indictment against Thaw.

District Attorney Edward A. Conger said: "The Grand Jury has not yet reported on the Thaw case."

MRS. THAW FILES ANSWER TO NEW SUIT BY COUNSEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, now at Concord, N. H., for Harry's extradition hearing, has filed her answer in the United States District Court to the second suit for $53,000 in counsel fees and disbursements brought against her by Attorney John B. Gleason, who defended Harry in the second murder trial. Mrs. Thaw denies Gleason's allegations that she induced the lawyer to take her son's case by falsehood and deception.

She insists that she never told Gleason that she would stand the expense of any extra disbursements of that Gleason would be able in case of necessity to levy against Thaw's income in order to insure the payment of the counsel fee. She concludes by saying that any rights which Gleason may have had as a creditor under his contract with Harry Thaw were barred by the bankruptcy proceedings.

Gleason's first suit was dismissed by Judge Rand in the United States District Court last January.

SIGNS OF INSANITY

By HARRY K. THAW

Copyright, 1913, by H. K. Thaw.

The insane are very conceited in preferring their own thoughts to those of others. You always find that their ideas, which they stick to, are unfounded and unreasonable ideas. This is a sign of their mental condition. Some sane people stick to their opinions, but you find that the ideas which the sane people stick to are at least partly reasonable and have some foundation, even if mistaken. The insane mind may stick to their opinions, for example, our first President and our last. The sign of insanity is not that insane people stick to their thoughts, but that their thoughts are irrational and they won't give attention to argument.

Ordinary conceit is not a sign of insanity. In fact, most lunatics are suspicious and stay by themselves, and many appear humble and even timid, while many sane men are bold and cheeky.

Some lunatics dress neatly, but that is not a sign of insanity, as many sane men are vain. Both sane or insane may esteem their mental powers or other abilities unduly. The difference may be that a conceited sane person has some slight grounds for his idea or opinion of himself, while the lunatic may be convicted over his appearance when he is half-developed or hideous and shrivelled, or even filthy; or a lunatic may boast of his ability to run the entire universe, when he really is too far gone mentally to come indoors when it rains.

Lunatics often speak very slow or very fast, but it is not the way they speak or write but the thought they express that shows insanity. In some cases of mental disease the thoughts flow very fast, or in other cases they are abnormally slow. Whether fast or slow the thoughts are defective, though the lunatic is unconscious of it.

Lunatics sometimes repeat some phrase or a single word over and over again, or talk incoherently, or say part of a sentence, then part of another, all jumbled up, sometimes keeping up such a rigmarole for an hour at a time, but full of nonsense. Here is an example from such a lengthy speech: "In the Republicans and the Hapthaggers than all will together beginning and the Republicans and all the police and etc., etc."

Other lunatics talk plainly, but unreasonably. It is common to hear lunatics exaggerate. Often one will expect him not endlessly, though he may express the insane thoughts in a logical manner.

A sane man may talk like a lunatic, but you will find he is excited and talking carelessly, or else he is joking. If so, he will, at the time or later, realize the foolishness of what he said, but the lunatic does his talking seriously. No sane man will talk like a lunatic for any length of time, unless he is trying to pretend to be insane, and here comes in an important fact. A sane man can't talk like a lunatic long enough to deceive anyone familiar with the insane. If a man's mind is sane he will show it even though he tries to pretend he is crazy. Only the lunatic, with his diseased mind, can talk and act for any length of time like a lunatic. Of course sane people have been passed as lunatics, but only with connivance of the authorities.

Writings express thoughts like conversation, but are not so sure a test. A sane person can write like a lunatic and deceive anyone. Also sane men sometimes write arrant nonsense out of ignorance or carelessness, or merely by writing in a hurry. It is not only the insane who writes a letter and forgets to date it. Sane persons very much upset may write letters lacking in coherance to a friend, but if the same sane man writes a stranger he will exercise self-control and pull himself together no matter if in great distress or anxiety and write plainly. A lunatic writes in the same irrational manner to a stranger that he does to a personal friend who might make allowances; that is, the lunatic can't perceive that his letter is not coherent nor reasonable. The same man who sends a scribbled note to a friend can see that it would be incomprehensive to a stranger. If you look at the notes a lawyer makes for his personal reference, you may find that they would read like gibberish to a stranger.

Some alienists have been known to pass a hasty judgment upon confused notes, which is more than unscientific. When a certain opinion is desired, willfully, regardless of actual conditions, it sometimes fixed up in this way. When a man is insane he may be unable to write reasonably or sanely. Then his writings are signs of his insanity.

A single remark or a scrap of paper may raise a presumption that a person is insane, but one can't be positive, as no lunatic can say or write anything that a sane man cannot.

To Be Concluded Tomorrow.

You use the strength of a Samson just in "taking a walk"

If you saw a man walking easily and jauntily down the street, pulling behind him a dozen loaded automobiles, you would think that Samson must have returned to earth again.

But if you could store up the energy you expend in walking only five miles, and use it all at once, you could do this feat yourself.

IN the 8800 steps you take in a five-mile walk, you lift a total of 660 tons. This is enough energy to move a dozen loaded automobiles a distance of several blocks.

The point to remember is that in going about your daily work or play, you do expend this vast amount of energy, and that every ounce of the great weight you lift comes down on your heels.

O'Sullivan's Heels of New, Live Rubber take up the jolt and absorb the shock. They enable you to walk with ease and comfort. They save you the fatigue and nerve fag caused by pounding hard floors and pavements with heels of leather and iron. They are invisible, keep the shoes in shape and last twice as long as leather.

O'Sullivan's Heels cost but 50c a pair, attached. Some shoe manufacturers put them on their shoes before they leave the factory. All shoe makers and shoe dealers will attach them to your shoes when you buy them, or at any other time. If you prefer, send us 35c and a tracing of your heel and we will mail you a pair.

Love Story of Harry and Evelyn

CHAPTER XXVI.

"This grief is crowned with consolation."—"Antony and Cleopatra."

When Evelyn awakened that Wednesday morning in her apartments in the Hotel Lorraine, after her visits of the day before to the offices of Delafield & Longfellow, her first thought was to see her unfortunate husband before another day passed. This was nearly thirty-six hours after the murder and Harry had not seen heard from Evelyn, although her letter, announcing her expected visit to the Tombs, was on the way.

Evelyn's one thought, as expressed to her brother-in-law, Josiah Thaw, who came to her flat, was to "Help Harry—he needs me."

Josiah Thaw had hurried over from Pittsburgh after a conference with the Thaw relatives about ways and means to save Harry. The gist of the conference, of course, was to spend all the money necessary to get the best legal talent, so that Harry should escape the electric chair and even escape imprisonment, if possible.

Josiah Thaw went to the Lorraine to see Evelyn the minute he struck New York. This was the most natural thing in the world for him to do, because Evelyn was Harry's wife and it was only the plain duty of the Thaw family to be with the girl.

Subsequent events have put Evelyn in a different attitude to the Thaws, but at most he bore in mind that, since her marriage, Evelyn had been cooperating with them, even more than Harry himself had.

But there may have been more than friendship in Josiah Thaw's early calling on Evelyn. He may have been moved, too, by motives of policy. Josiah Thaw was then—and is now—a clever man, shrewd enough to see the importance of Evelyn's position in the murder tangle.

Furthermore, it was more than likely that Josiah had been advised by his own personal lawyers that Evelyn was vast for a leading rule in the defence.

In any event, Josiah Thaw was at the Lorraine in good season that morning and his card was sent up to Evelyn.

Josiah found his sister-in-law weeping, hysterical and frightened. But she was not thinking of herself. She was thinking of Harry.

Harry was Evelyn's husband. What ever quarrels they had had, he had proven her greatest opportunity in life—as she regarded it. He had spent money on her lavishly. And he had shot down a man—as he maintained—to avenge her. Every finger of duty, as Evelyn saw it, pointed her way to Harry's cell, to cheer and console him if she could.

The girl's whole nature had been so keyed up by the strain of the past few hours that she hardly knew what she was doing. But she was frantic to get down to the Tombs—where she had never been in her life—and to see Harry.

Evelyn almost ran to Josiah, when he was shown in her flat. Tears streamed down her cheeks.

"I'm so glad you're here," she wailed. "I want you to take me right down to see Harry. I must go right off now. I must go where he is. He needs my comfort."

So Josiah Thaw didn't argue, but started downtown with his sister-in-law as soon as she was ready. Evelyn wore a brown dress, which she had on the day before, and put on her travel veil. They went in an electric coupe to Judge Olcott's office. The judge consented to Evelyn and Josiah going to the Tombs and made arrangements for them to be passed in to see Harry without delay.

They had a bad time entering the Tombs. They were nearly mobbed by a morbid crowd. This worked on Evelyn's screaming nerves until the girl was almost insane herself.

Their coupe was first stopped near the main entrance to the Tombs but the crowd spied them, set up a yell. "The Thaws, the Thaws," and rushed at them to stare at the girl over whom one man had killed another.

Josiah Thaw ordered the chauffeur to drive around the Tombs block while he did. On the way they encountered an Italian funeral procession with a band playing a dirge. They had to wait for this and the funeral suggestion was naturally unpleasant. Then the crowd found them again and they were stared at unmercifully. Finally, they did get into the Tombs.

Josiah Thaw had to submit to being searched. A pocketknife was taken from him, a check being given him to redeem it when he left. This search was another disagreeable example of the fact that the Thaw family was in bad contact with the law.

Harry was still with the officials in the library of the District Attorney's office, so Josiah and Evelyn waited a half hour. Then they were escorted to "Murderers' Row," where Harry was waiting just outside his cell, with Warden Flynn himself standing nearby.

"Oh, Harry, Harry!"

She clasped both arms around his neck and kissed him repeatedly. Harry encircled Evelyn and reciprocated her kisses. Evelyn was sobbing. Harry wept.

Josiah Thaw, who came forward to greet his imprisoned brother as soon as Evelyn gave him a chance, was also moved to tears.

Warden Flynn considerately stepped aside a few feet, to give Harry, his wife and brother a chance to talk unheard. All three conversed in low tones for a half-hour.

This was the first time that Evelyn had ever been in a jail. She shuddered from time to time, as she gazed at the barred cell which was her husband's home. She began to have an even more lively understanding of Harry's plight. It is possible that, at that moment, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw realized that this man her husband, was in mortal danger and that nothing but an extraordinarily strong will and a remedy which might cost gifts and anguish—but which would have to be endured to save the life of the imprisoned man.

At the end of the half-hour Evelyn and Harry kissed, the men shook hands and the wife and brother departed. Harry was tremendously cheered by their visit. His appetite perked up and he ordered and ate a substantial meal from outside.

To Be Continued.

EVELYN THAW

Writes for the Sunday American "My Own Story of My Life." More surprising than anything in fiction or drama! Double page next Sunday.

Evelyn Worth Saving?

Will Evelyn Nesbit Thaw worth saving?

Several score readers of the AMERICAN expressed the opinion that Evelyn was worth saving. There are a few more letters on the subject. Read them and decide for yourself.

Made Sacrifice.

Evelyn made a sacrifice that good in all its majesty cannot buy. And what is she not worth saving? She is saved. Gertrude Atherton, the novelist, says she is not. That is only an individual opinion. Take it for what it is worth. Suppose Evelyn had killed Webb. Would any jury in this broad land convict her of murder? I think not. And she has been a self-sacrificing martyr. She is saved.

ONLY A MOTHER

Give Her a Chance.

What does motherhood stand for? Did the Creator ever plan to have a woman who is a mother placed in such a position that society should scorn her? Was a wife for seven years and a mother for four children, I take, of course, the sentimental side of the question, but on any legal argument he advanced that can prove Evelyn Thaw is not worth saving? This poor, unfortunate stripling of a girl has been abused enough. Give her a chance. She has had done a thousand times worse she would still be worth saving.

WILLIAM H. G. BROWN.

Unjustified Blame.

The history of the world has taught us that the so-called righteous are not always right. They condemn, but are they justified? Evelyn Thaw may have made mistakes. Let us suppose that she did, and then ask ourselves the question: Is she worth saving? Remember, we are women. Extend the hand of Christian sympathy and kindness.

MISS LUCY PETERS.

Evelyn a Victim.

I have studied the Bible for thirty years, and as yet to read a passage that would justify Gertrude Atherton making the statement that is credited to her. Evelyn has not done what I consider right since her husband was sent to Matteawan. However, let us consider what she has done for him. Her confession will, He for one hundred years, so how can we expect her to be any better? She has been a victim of circumstances since she reached the age of fifteen. If any woman could understand themselves how much better this world would be.

A. Z. BADGER.

"Good Luck to Her."

Harry Thaw is happy and contented. He believes that within a few weeks he will be free. The world at large asks the question—Is Evelyn worth saving? And you have to answer one problem. Because Evelyn is a woman, she must be condemned. Why so? Her husband has been worse than she, so why should she suffer? I say, with all my heart, that she is worth saving. Good luck to her, and may she have a happy and prosperous future. L. E. D.

Is Not Worth Saving.

Gertrude Atherton did not mean in her statement that Evelyn should be led out to slaughter for her sins, but she hit the nail on the head when she said that this woman who is deserting her husband is not worth saving. I do not want to entertain her. Do you?

BLANCHE IRESON.

THAW DINES WITH FELKER—BUT IT'S AT ANOTHER TABLE

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Harry Thaw saw the man who is to judge him yesterday for the first time.

There was no greeting. The meeting merely took the form of a glance of the eye.

IT PAYS TO PAY CASH

As the New Man Sees It

The second of a series of impressions, by the new Sales Manager, which, we believe, will help to show many more thrifty New England people, the money saving advantages of trading at this great cash store.

"Every woman knew that Mrs. Jones made the best pies.

She had the knack—could not tell exactly how she did it—just made them.

Years ago this mammoth store was one of those small neighborhood stores.

The men that founded it had the knack of selling reliable goods at the lowest prices—giving the best bargains.

Unlike Mrs. Jones, they knew how they did it.

They bought for Cash and sold for Cash, no deviating, a strictly Cash business from start to finish. They wouldn't be swerved from their carefully laid plans—like General Grant, "they would fight it out on these lines if it took all summer."

As I see it, Cash buying and selling is the keynote of this great store's success.

Learn to pay Cash and you have mastered the first lesson of economy.

And just as Houghton & Dutton have been pioneers in building up this great Cash Store, so have they insisted on economy in its management.

I am convinced that this store is performing a valuable and helpful service in distributing reliable goods throughout New England at their Low Cash Prices.

A service of vital importance in these days of high cost of living."

THE NEW SALES MANAGER.

P. S.—Our Advertising at best can be but sign posts, pointing the way to New England's Greatest Cash Store.

The values printed from time to time show the low prices; if you do not see what you desire among them, rest assured that what you require is here for you at equally low prices—things to wear, for the home, and the table. Write or telephone if you cannot come to the store.

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS—25-CENT DANDERINE

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

NEW WOMAN WITNESS FOUND IN DEATH FLAT

burst present supplied the statement. She said:

"I met the man I now know was Schmidt on the evening of Saturday, September 6. He was coming out of the house just as I entered. He held the door open for me to pass through but said nothing.

"This man had a bundle under his arm, wrapped in brown paper, about as big as a pork sausage."

Finds Second Witness.

The AMERICAN located a second witness, Carlton Brooks, superintendent of the Bradhurst avenue building, who supplied vital information concerning Schmidt's movements on the night of the slaying, September 7. Brooks said:

"The one time that I saw Schmidt was on September 7, about 8 o'clock in the evening. I was standing at Bradhurst avenue and One Hundred and Forty-sixth street, when he came out and passed me, going toward Eighth avenue. I stopped him and told him I hoped to get the painters at work in the flat before many more days. He said it wouldn't be necessary, that he and his wife had cleaned up, and he was very anxious that I should forget all about the matter. He was exceedingly polite."

Coroner's physician Timothy D. Leland made a statement as a result of observations made by him as an expert at the autopsy upon Anna Aumuller's body held in Hoboken by the county authorities ten days ago. He said:

Condemns Delay in Case.

"The dismembering may have been made immediately after the throat was cut, or it may have been made some time later. The hemorrhage, which accompanied the severing of the artery drained the body of blood. Assistant District Attorney Murphy and Coroner's Physician King will bear me out in this. I cannot understand the delay in disposing of this entire matter. The slayer is absolutely insane."

Mme. Labori Praises Care Given Husband

Mme. Fernand Labori, wife of Maitre Labori, the foremost lawyer in France, is enthusiastic in her praise of Boston physicians, and although normally disposed by the sudden turn of affairs caused by her husband's illness, is happy in the knowledge that he has had as good treatment as he would have received in Paris and that his recovery is only a matter of time. In speaking of her husband's illness today Madame Labori said:

"M. Labori is well on the road to recovery. It is now thirteen days since your wonderful Boston physicians operated on my husband and so great was their skill and care that M. Labori will be able to sail for Paris in a few weeks now. The Fall sessions of the French courts begin the first of October, and the delay occasioned by his unfortunate illness and the operation are very annoying to him.

"The daughters who accompany us are Violette, who is twenty; Denise, seventeen, and Odette, the baby, who is but ten. They enjoy Boston immensely.

"I wish you would say a good word for Dr. Gannett, who is M. Labori's physician, and for the senior Dr. Mixer, who was called into the case by Dr. Gannett. They compare favorably with the leading French doctors."

YOUNG WOMEN SHOULD COOK, SAYS CASSIDY

Much has been said and written on the duties of a married woman. There is no doubt that a woman about to be married ought to know something about pure food. Professor Allyn at the Westfield Normal School is doing a great deal to make up for this want. Mr. Cassidy writes today of this need.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Professor W. F. Eastman, National President of the Pure Food Club hits the nail on the head when he declares that every bride-elect should give satisfactory proof that she has been trained in the latest pure food study and be able properly to care for a home and the health of a family.

The Pure Food Club of which Dr. Eastman is head is organized to promote home and food reform and its usefulness is unquestioned.

Of course the girl who has had to earn her own living and has not had the advantages of home life is handicapped. But even she can do something to better fit herself for domestic usefulness.

It's a serious enough problem at best, this marriage problem, for young people with the present high cost of living. But I was once connected with a large law office which handled thousands of divorce cases. Many of the women who were trying to get divorces could have peeled a potato for a trip to Europe. As for putting a hen on a hatched-off, trimming a new hat or doing some of the other thousand and one things by which a young wife can aid a struggling husband, they were utterly helpless.

It's all very well for a woman to be able to sing or play an aria from grand opera, to write a story accepted by the magazines, to take a leading part in social problems. But the average husband with all his faults would just as soon have his wife able to do some of the things in the kitchen and about the house that mother was able to do.

Two or three decades ago when cooking through invention was rather crude, girls used to take a delight in donning an apron and showing their cooking skill to their fathers and brothers. The art of cooking appealed to them. They became adepts at it. Incidentally there wasn't so much dyspepsia abroad in the land.

But we fear that a change has come over them. The ordinary young girl of today scorns the kitchen. This, too, in spite of the fact that science through electricity and gas has made cooking so much more easy.

In the olden days the fire had to be lighted. The utensils were crude. Today all she has to do is to light the gas or turn the electric switch. Despite these advantages they're altogether too much time spent in learning the tango or some other animal dance.

It's all very well. But such girls have only themselves to blame if they have to seek a lawyer to straighten out their matrimonial tangles. Their husbands will stay down town to luncheon when they might as conveniently eat home. Finally they will become detached from their wives altogether.

Every girl with marriage intentions should become the best cook she knows how. The saying that the way to many a man's heart is through his stomach is trite but a great preventive of divorce.

There would be more general happiness in the world if young women before becoming wives had a clearer conception of the duties which devolve upon them. Not the least of these is an adequate knowledge of domestic science and the inclination to use it. Marriages may be made in heaven. But don't forget they are lived out on earth.

Lockjaw Kills Two

PRENTON, Sept. 23.—Raymond F. Cice, five, and Katherine Flynn, six, whose homes are in Morrisville, died of lockjaw in Mercer Hospital here as the result of infection following vaccination. The children did not guard the wounds on their arms from abrasion and the fatal disease followed when their blood was poisoned through contact with their clothing.

Turks Clinch Their Hold on Adrianople

SOFIA, Sept. 23.—Announcement was made today that an independent treaty between Bulgaria and Turkey will be signed Thursday. This treaty will clinch Turkey's right to the possession of Adrianople.

Searches for Wife Missing 3 Weeks

Martray Abdelahad, No. 89 Hudson street, has asked the AMERICAN to aid him in his search for his wife, Mrs. Abdelahad is twenty-two, slight of figure and of dark complexion. She has been missing from home three weeks.

Astor and Oelrichs Sail in Wild Gale

NEWPORT, Sept. 23.—Vincent Astor, with his clans, Hermann Oelrichs, sailed on board the steam yacht Noma for New York in the teeth of a southeast gale in which even fishermen and sea-going tug skippers did not care to venture seaward. It was their farewell to Newport for the season.

WEEKS-LODGE TEST SEEN IN G.O.P. VOTING

Politicians today discussed the view held in some quarters that today's primaries, from the G. O. P. standpoint were, in effect, a contest between Senators Lodge and Weeks for supremacy. They recalled the demand of Congressman Gardner for the resignation of Chairman Hatfield of the Republican State Committee, and wondered whether it was not the first open sign of a break between Lodge and Weeks.

Chairman Hatfield has refused to discuss the demand for his decapitation, except to say that it is extraordinary, and that he can find no reason for it. Politicians from Washington say that politicians profess to believe Weeks is with Benton, while Lodge is backing Gardner.

It is said Chairman Hatfield is with Benton, and that if Benton wins there will be no change in the leadership of the State Committee. On the other hand if Gardner wins it is said that he will conduct his campaign from his own headquarters.

Salary Too Large, Official Resigns

Goodwin, Morgan's Cousin, Leaves Hartford Board.

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 23.—Because his salary was too large, F. Spencer Goodwin, president of the Board of Water Commissioners, cousin of the late James Pierpont Morgan, appointed three months ago after a six months' deadlock in the board, has handed in his resignation to the board to take effect today.

His salary is $5,000, and he asked that the compensation be reduced to the original figure of $800. In his letter to the board he said that "the experience of the past three months has convinced me that under the present antiquated system it is impossible, wisely and economically, to administer the great work entrusted to this board."

Wilson Goes Home to Cast His Vote

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—President Wilson left the capital early today for Princeton, N. J., to vote for Acting Governor Fielder in the Democratic gubernatorial primary. It is the first time the President has visited his home town since he left, March 3, to come to Washington.

Mme. Poiret's Skirt Reveals High Boots

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Madame Paul Poiret, wife of the French costumer, appeared in the lobby of the Hotel Plaza today wearing patent leather boots. They were made to cossack style, with an inverted cuff extending down about three and a half inches from the top.

The boots extended a little more than half way to the knee, and were wholly visible, as Madame Poiret's dress was slashed for that purpose.

Young Man Admits That He Shot Girl

DANBURY, Ct., Sept. 23.—Marguerite Gilbert, sixteen, daughter of Julius Gilbert of Long Ridge, is in the hospital here, shot through the head and in a serious condition.

John Tidd, twenty-one, a wealthy resident of Long Ridge, admits having shot the girl, it is said. Todd picked up a rifle, he says, and pointed it at her, telling her to put up her hands. He says he did not know the weapon was loaded.

Ends Bicycle Trip of 1,100 Miles Here

Clarence J. Tinker, Divinity Student, Comes from Michigan.

After a "cruise" of 1,100 miles on his eleven-year-old bicycle, from Michigan, Clarence J. Tinker, a divinity student at Cambridge, today began his second year on time. He hurried the last part of his trip so that he "might have a day to get rid of the dirt he had accumulated."

Mr. Tinker left his home September 8. The trip cost him $31.

Wants Wife Punished on Contempt Charge

Julius A. Zlan, the florist, sought action today against his wife, Olivia F. Zlan, also a florist and a competing one, in the Supreme Court, to have her adjudged in contempt of that body. He claims she has disobeyed the injunction of the court ordering her not to use in the conduct of her business the name, "Zlan's Flower Shop."

MOVE TO FREE 'INSANE' GIRL AND MOTHER

John Ivanoff McGuff at Madden and her daughter, Julia McGuff, three years confined in the State Hospital for the Insane at Washburn, by order of the Malden court, began a fight for freedom today in the Supreme Judicial Court.

Through her attorney, W. H. Sweeney, Mrs. McGuff, in whose behalf a habeas corpus writ is asked, has instituted her present legal battle.

In his petition, Mr. Sweeney states he is informed by John Ivanoff McGuff that it is Standing superintendent of the hospital is interested in keeping her in custody, and of this matter, personally, he says he is ignorant, but makes the allegation upon the information and belief.

Oil Millionaire Dies Like a Hobo

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.—John M. Fuller, who died mysteriously at the Sadona Hotel, is believed to have been a millionaire, although he dressed like a tramp and associated with hoboes. He fed his dog 83 steaks.

Renew Search for Mrs. Case's Slayer

Police Suspect but One Man in Springfield Shooting.

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 23.—The police today declare the slayer of Mrs. Matilda E. Case is still at large, despite rumors of an arrest in Canada. Mrs. Case was shot and killed. It is believed, by a man with whom she had a quarrel. Her husband came home and found her dead.

The police suspect only one man, and have a warrant out for his arrest.

Plan to Avert Famine in Beef

Packers Urge Development of New England Hills.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Remedies and preventive means against a beef famine suggested at the American Meat Packers' Convention, resumed here today, were:

Every small farmer should raise at least two beef steers a year to offset the decreased production of the great ranches of the West.

The remaining ranges should be cut up in farms to put all farmers on an equal footing.

Development of the hills of New England with their bountiful springs and prevailing shade as a beef producing country.

Substitution of corn for cotton in the Southern States and the consequent development of the cattle and hog production.

Must Sign His Own Name 14,000 Times

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.—Edward B. Pryor, one of the receivers for the Wabash Railroad, must sign his name 14,000 times to receivers' certificates, a Federal Court order declares. He cannot use a rubber stamp, and no abbreviation of any kind will be allowed.

Pastor Raps Rouge; Woman Quits Church

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Rev. Dr. W. I. Southerton, at a social in the Hanson Place Baptist Church, Brooklyn, scored the women who "come painted and powdered as no woman should be" to church. Then he bowed to a woman in one of the front rows and said: "Pardon me, madame." The woman left the church.

WIFE TRIED TO SHOOT HIM, SAYS CAPT. MERRIAM

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—Accusations that Mrs. Bessie M. Merriam, his wife, formerly of Winthrop, Mass., tried several times to poison herself and their child, and more than once tried to shoot him, were made by Captain Henry C. Merriam, in the examination of his suit for divorce now proceeding here.

"She attempted to poison herself many times and gave poison to our child. There is other unusual testimony in support that," declared Captain Merriam on the stand.

A letter addressing to Captain Merriam told of widespread gossip among officers at the post as to the conduct of Mrs. Merriam during her husband's absence on the Mexican border.

Damrosch Praises Opera in English

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Walter Damrosch, who is now in Paris, said today:

"I much regret that I was unable to attend the opening performances at the Century Theatre. The progress made in three years toward opera in English is marvellous. "If the Avery Brothers reform those dreadful English libretto and if they time to time they will give us some work of special interest, they should succeed."

Some Bryan Cash Aids Young Men

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Defending Secretary Bryan's lecture tours, Senator Martine told the Senate some of Mr. Bryan's "fixed charges" were the education of several young men. A few years ago Mr. Bryan was fulminating and educating two boys from Japan," he said, "and today I believe he is educating three or four young men."

Deadlock Over Currency Action

WASHINGTON, September 23.—A deadlock between the advocates and opponents of immediate currency legislation marked the opening of hearings before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee today. A majority of the committee has voted down an effort to close hearings on the bill October 4.

Servians Repulse Albanians in Battle

BELGRADE, Sept. 23.—Fighting between Servians and Albanians is going on all along the frontier of Servia. An irregular battle line, sixty miles long, stretches from Dibra to Dikova. The Albanians were repulsed trying to cross the frontier and invade Servia. They retreated leaving 200 dead and hundreds of wounded.

Woman a "Joke Burglar."

LEE, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Violet Simmons, twenty-six, had her case continued in police court here when she told Judge Hinsdale she entered the house of Augustus Fermente, taking some articles and "playing burglar" for a joke.

Any Woman Can Have Smooth, Hairless Skin

(Beauty Topics)

Here is a simple treatment, which, if used, will quickly banish hair or fuzz from chin, cheek or lip: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairy surface, apply, and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and the hairs are gone. Then wash the skin to rid it of the remaining paste. This is quite harmless and does not injure the most sensitive skin. Definite results are had quickly and if the delatone is bought in an original package. —Adv.

Red Letter Day

Keeping this the biggest one-day sale in New England by the biggest value-giving that we know of.

Red Letter Day isn't a profit-making sale. It is more a day set aside for demonstrating the unmatchable buying and selling power of the great four-store organization that Mr. Siegel has built.

These prices rule only one day—Wednesday—but if you can manage to be here that day you can buy at the month's lowest prices.

Only part of the story told here but we'll hand you a book at the door that will direct you to all the special values.

COURT ACTION TO COLLECT ON WILLIAMS' NOTE

The first of scores of suits expected as the result of disputed signatures to notes payable to the late George E. Williams, is entered in the Norfolk County today by Samuel K. Casson, for clients, against Dr. Henry L. Dearing of Braintree. Hearing is set for September 30.

Dr. Dearing denies specifically ever signing the notes. One is for $482.50 and the other for $452, and it is understood he has called into his service a Boston handwriting expert, to find that the signatures were forgeries.

The claim is made today that Williams was a victim of loan sharks, who worked in connection with policyholders of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company by inducing them to borrow on their policies. They would lend them funds at a higher rate of interest to pay their premiums.

The policyholders were induced to borrow on their policies at 5 per cent. or 6 per cent. interest. They would then beg Williams to keep up their insurance payments until better times.

In order to do this, it is claimed, Williams was forced to borrow from the money sharks at 10 to 12 per cent. interest. The loan sharks got the difference in interest rates.

Employe Is Made a Gas Director

Fred M. Goodwin, assistant superintendent of the main and service department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, has been chosen a member of the board of directors of the corporation by the holders of profit shares. Mr. Goodwin is thirty-eight, and entered the service of the company in 1896.

The election is due of the privileges of the employes, the more efficient among them being allowed a yearly dividend upon their earnings with which stock in the company is purchased for them.

Investigate Charge of Lobby by G. G. A.

Councilmen Ballantyne, McDonald and Attridge today began an investigation of the charges by Councilman Sachs that the Good Government Association lobbied in the building extension ordinance which the Council has passed in its adoption of the original plan of former Fire Commissioner Charles D. Daly.

Mexicans Kill 30 in Train Robbery

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 23.—Thirty persons were killed when rebels dynamited and pillaged a passenger train on the Mexican National Railway sixty miles south of Saltillo, Mexico.

QUERY NURSE ROBINSON FOR STABBING CLEW

Miss Doris Loraine Robinson, the night nurse at the Malden Hospital, stabbed while on duty at the institution, will be questioned today in an effort to gain a clew that will result in the arrest of her assailant.

What evidence the police have points to the attack on Miss Robinson having been premeditated by someone who knew her and is intimately acquainted with the interior of the hospital. For this reason, it looks to the authorities as if revenge for some fancied wrong or misunderstanding was the cause.

As it is believed the man was in the corridor near Nine, waiting for Miss Robinson to appear, the police say it is not likely the attack was by an insane man, who, they declare, would have struck at the first person he saw.

"The assailant's words: 'I'll get you, if it takes ten years,' uttered as he slashed with his knife, are significant, and will be investigated in the interview which will take place today, if Nurse Robinson's condition permits.

The nan's threat and the fact that the knife was taken from the hospital kitchen, stores, the police say, that the attack was hardly the work of friends of a former prisoner patient. Fikre Kucharian, whose father, while he was in the institution, appealing for aid, was found by the institution's officials.

As a result of the stabbing, Malden citizens are a unit in urging a watchman at the hospital. Had one been on duty in the corridor, the stabbing horrid would have taken place. And if it did, they declare, the assailant would have found it difficult to escape. The hospital is secluded, and from time to time reports have been received by the police of men lurking in the woods that nearly surround the building.

1100 Volts Shock New Haven Fireman

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A shock of 1,100 volts passing through the body of Fireman Irving Thompson as he stood on a New Haven Railroad engine today left him in a critical condition with small chance of living. Thompson and Engineer Thomas Dorigan were making up a freight train in the Hunt's Point yards, when Thompson climbed back over the tender to make a repair. He stood up and his head came in contact with the overhead wires which feed electricity to the electric motors.

Radcliffe Girls to Hear Briggs

The choosing of courses and the registration of freshmen and former students completed, the Radcliffe College freshmen and seniors assemble today in the college gymnasium, listening to instructions by Miss Elizabeth Wright, director of the gymnasium.

At noon President Briggs made a short address in Agassiz House Theatre, after which Mrs. Gallison, musical director, spoke.

Ash Tray, Match Holder and Cigar Cutter Combined

While the Supply Lasts

To Every Purchaser of 10c Worth of Tuxedo Tobacco

You'll give this smoking set a place among the things you prize. It is well made, handsomely copper oxidized and, above all else, practical, complete and useful. Has a stand for your box of matches, two rests for cigars and is equipped with cigar cutter, a feature to be found on few of even the most expensive smoking sets.

Just the thing for the office desk or for use at home. (Only one to a customer.)

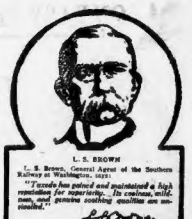
This free offer is made to induce smokers not yet acquainted with Tuxedo to try it, especially at home, where its delicate fragrance will make it welcome to other members of your household. No odor to cling about curtains and draperies if you smoke TUXEDO.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Tuxedo is made of only the finest Burley tobacco grown in Kentucky, mellow ripe and full flavored. This leaf is cured and aged until it has reached the tip-top of perfection. Then it is treated by the original "Tuxedo Process" which completely eliminates every trace of bite and sting and develops the wonderful Tuxedo mildness and fragrance which no other tobacco has ever successfully imitated.

You can smoke Tuxedo all day long, seven days a week, if you like, and never experience the slightest tongue bite. Tuxedo makes it possible for any man to smoke a pipe, no matter how sensitive a tongue he may have.



L. S. BROWN

L. S. Brown, General Agent of the Southern Railway at Washington, says:

"Tuxedo has gained and maintained a high reputation for superiority. Its coolness, mildness, and genuine soothing qualities are unequalled."

L. S. Brown

IRVIN S. COBB

Irvin S. Cobb, well known humorist and short story writer, author of "Back Home," "Anatomy," etc., says:

"I can't think of any reason why I shouldn't say I like Tuxedo—because I do like it, very much.

NEW RULING AIDS DIGGS AND CAMINETTI

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 23.—The interpretation of the Mann White Slave act by Federal Judge John C. Pollock that it applied only to commercial features of the interstate transportation of women may prove of aid to Diggs and Caminetti, convicted in San Francisco of transporting two girls to Reno for immoral purposes.

Judge Pollock, when Lee Baker of Peabody, Kan., was arraigned here on a white slave charge, induced the defendant to change his plea from guilty to not guilty. The judge asked:

"Do you base this plea on the interpretation of the law in the Diggs case?"

Baker's attorney replied that he did, and said he had expected the same ruling in this case.

"Under the law as I construe it," the judge said, "the commercial feature must be proved. It was not the aim of Congress to prevent the personal escapades of any man. If the government cannot prove this man took the girl to another State for a commercial purpose, I shall instruct the jury to acquit him. The jurisdiction of the government in cases of this kind is based on the commercial laws."

Baker then pleaded not guilty and the case went to trial.

Clifton Loring Weds Miss Elsie Randall

Miss Elsie M. Randall, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Randall of No. 216 Newbury street, Back Bay, and Clifton Loring, the son of Mrs. Freeman Allen Loring of No. 3 Brooks street, West Medford, are today on their honeymoon in the White Mountains.

Mr. Loring was secretary of the Democratic State Committee for three years and was nominated as the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor in 1911, when the Democrats, in their convention, failed to agree on a candidate.

What Is a Meal for a Woman? Asks Board

Washington Excise Men Don't Know How New Law Works.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—"What is a meal for a woman?" and is carrying a cone full of liquor a violation of the new excise law for the District of Columbia, are the two problems which the new excise board, appointed by President Wilson, must face.

Since the new "blue law" went into effect, the hotels and clubs, unable to sell liquor except to bona-fide guests or during a "meal" have been at a loss. Some women are claiming that a few slices of chicken between two slices of bread is really all one requires.

The hollowed out walking stick, however, gives the board more trouble. They are so popular that the barrooms in Washington are having special spigots made, so that they—the canes—may be filled easily.

Zunser, Noted Poet of the Jews, Dead

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The little printing shop of Eliakum Zunser in the dark basement at No. 154 East Broadway is closed today. Eliakum the bard, Eliakum the sweet singer, whose folk songs are sung by millions of Jews the world over, is dead. A Zunser jubilee committee was formed in 1905 with Dr. David Blaustein of the Educational Alliance as chairman, and on March 31 Cooper Union was filled with Zunser's people, who thanked, wept, laughed and cheered at the recital of his work and songs.

Mme. Labori Praises Boston Physicians

Mme. Fernand Labori, wife of Maitre Labori, the foremost lawyer in France, is enthusiastic in her praise of Boston physicians. Her noted husband was stricken with appendicitis in this city and was operated on.

"M. Labori is well on the road to recovery," said Mme. Labori. "It is now thirteen days since your wonderful Boston physicians operated on my husband and no great was their skill and care that M. Labori will be able to sail for Paris in a few weeks now."

ATTRACTIONS THAT DRAW THRONGS TO THE BOSTON PLAYHOUSES

'SUNSHINE GIRL' IS ATTRACTION AT THE HOLLIS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

There is a great deal more to soap than its lather—there is, for instance, "The Sunshine Girl," which turns that important household necessity into a musical comedy as fragrant as the perfume that distinguishes the strictly toilet from the kitchen variety. "The Sunshine Girl" restored the Hollis Street Theatre to the theatrical map last evening in a fashion that left no regrets. It was an evening of the jolliest kind of entertainment into which were crowded all of the good qualities of musical comedy, with a refreshing freedom from the dull and doubtful things in that form of entertainment.

Not since Charles Frohman entered the producing field has he given his time and attention to a more attractive musical play. "The Sunshine Girl" was in good taste and in good melody—it sparkled with crisp humor and carried you through three hours of solid enjoyment. It also gave Julie Sanderson her first opportunity to stand squarely on her feet as an established, electric lighted star, and she stood firm and serene, except at such moments when she lifted her dainty toes in dances that she made graceful and exceedingly easy to gaze upon.

There were doubtless many responsibilities in Miss Sanderson's task, but she carried them lightly, lifted with a personality and charm that is seldom found in our ingenuish young players, she made an easy and immediate conquest of her audience. Her girlishness was genuine—it was not affected—and the grace of youth walked hand in hand with her through many delicious moments of "The Sunshine Girl." You may safely drop back to the popular humor of the day and proclaim that Miss Sanderson was the girl who put the sun in "The Sunshine Girl."

The splendid qualities of entertainment discovered in "The Sunshine Girl"—its even balance, its musical comedy, its tuneful melodies, and its remarkably pretty settings—once more reminded us that musical plays from London are frequently more than a simple assortment of lyrics, jokes and a score. "The Sunshine Girl" had values of its own—values that needed no bolstering up through the medium of interpolated numbers and local gags, although some of the latter species of humor was injected into the performances. They would never be missed, if lost. Joseph Cawthorn, who shared the displayed type with Miss Sanderson, carried a burden of comedy that would have crumbled the shoulders of a less sturdy purveyer of the tricks of laughter. He was the smiling joy of the evening—funny to the point of infecting you with hysteria. His song, "You Can't Play Every Instrument in the Band," the words of which are credited to his pen, was alone worth the journey to the Hollis. Mr. Cawthorn contributed even more than his share to the performance.

Julia Sanderson as Dora Dale, and Alan Mudie as Vernon Blundell, in "The Sunshine Girl" at the Hollis.

"CASCARETS" FOR BILIOUS LIVER

Get a 10-cent box now.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get the desired results with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets tonight; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Yearned for Pittsburgh.

Flossie Hope, a diminutive dancer, made every minute count for something worth while, and Alan Mudie, in one number with Miss Sanderson, responded to the call of the dance in whirlwind fashion. Florence Morrison gave her ample figure to the demand of comedy, and William Selbey supplied American color to the evening as the advertising man of a soap factory. He yearned for Pittsburgh in a semi-profane way that didn't speak very well for that community.

If you cannot enjoy "The Sunshine Girl," there is something serious the matter with your taste. As musical plays go—and come—it is almost too good to be true.

Globe Theatre.

One of the prettiest playlets of the year was seen at the Globe Theatre yesterday, when Irene Meyers and Spencer Charters presented "Daddie." The sketch was alive with good comedy, and was a distinct hit. This was but one of a dozen other smart vaudeville features, among which were the Medena Singing Four; "Mlle. Jeanette, in artistic spelling; Merritt and Douglas, in some really funny chatter, and the Barretts, in boomerang throwing. New pictures were also exhibited during the morning and "supper" hours.

Shubert Theatre.

"The Purple Road," an operatic romance woven around Napoleon's love affairs, with music by Heinrich Reinhardt, had its first performance at the Shubert Theatre last evening. Valli Valli and Harrison Brockbank were seen in the leading roles. The piece will be reviewed in tomorrow's (Wednesday's) AMERICAN.

St. James Theatre.

Gray and Graham were the headline features of the new bill at the St. James Theatre yesterday. They presented a lively comedy sketch called "The Musical Bellboy." A dozen other acts, including pictures, were also seen.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The new bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday was headed by the "Eleven Georgia Blossoms." Other vaudeville features were included in the entertainment.

Orpheum Theatre.

Tom Linton and his "Jungle Girls" had the place of honor in the anniversary week bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. Other attractive vaudeville features and a new list of pictures completed the program.

FRITZI SCHEFF HEADS BILL AT B. F. KEITH'S

Fritzi Scheff leaped from stage to stage—from grand opera to comic opera—then to matrimony, then to vaudeville. Comic opera, and now vaudeville. Fritzi came to Keith's yesterday and dazzled her first Boston vaudeville audience with her marvelous sky-piloted voice. She cracked the whip and that sound-ful voice galloped up and down the scales, and trilled up into the topmost niche of the theatre.

Never mind what she sang about—her four songs seemed to be about love and kisses and heart throbs and such, but the audience just sat and toasted on Fritzi's vocal calisthenics and her own beauty. Her gown was the very latest, right from Paris, and her dash and go and smile were her very own famous property. Welcome to vaudeville, Fritzi!

The singer is accompanied by Eugene Bernstein and by the same Futurist stage setting before which Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Giants made his initial bow at Keith's. Mr. McGraw is laughing now from Fritzi to the Oxford. True, this show will sing and it thinks, but not, at the piano. The Gardner Trio, two young women and a young man, have a repertoire of singing and dancing and dancing and singing and Cohan is to town again. This time giving us how to entertain friends. Gaiety Theatre, where the star and show draw fine big audiences.

Bessey is one of the most popular soubrettes in burlesque, and she has a personality pretty to behold. It is in that direction he plays for, of course, he was attended by a number of pretty girls, who in their zeal to make the play especially pleasing, succeeded in making it a strenuous show.

Waldron's Casino.

The Cracker Jacks, which included some dancing and singing young women, constituted the bill at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday. It was not a show with a punch.

Good Vaudeville At the National

It's a lively program that at the National this week, with its manifold monks raised they rising on the stage and dance and sing and do all sorts of things, even doing a song and a dance, at the piano. The Gardner Trio, young women and a young man, have a repertoire of singing and dancing and dancing and singing and Next Week's Bills.

Joseph and His Brethren" will move into the Boston Theatre next Monday for an extended stay.

"The Five Frankforters" will be next week's feature at the Majestic.

George M. Cohan is "Broadway Jones," and is the attraction at the National next week.

"Kindred Follies," series of 1913, will take possession of the Trocadero next Monday.

A Butterfly on the Wheel" will be Mr. Crane's next attraction at the Castle Square Theatre.

Howard Athenaeum.

Cpl. Morris, heralded as the "Hero of the White House," was a special attraction at the Old Howard yesterday. Morris was seen in an athletic sketch that pleased the day's audiences. The big feature of the bill was supplied by "The Bostonian Cruise Girls."

Plays That Remain.

Belasco and Heath began their first week at the Majestic Theatre last evening. The Heath Two is just as unfailingly funny as ever.

"The Merry Martyrs" started upon its final week at the Colonial Theatre last evening. It is a charming musical comedy of wonderful merit.

Miss Hope and Her Little Highness began a new week at the Tremont last evening. This will be the last week of the year in Boston.

"The Commuters" continues at the Park, where its thrilling situations and compelling humor are attracting capacity audiences.

The Fourth Estate remains at the Boston Theatre this week. It is a musical comedy of New England in the early seventies. Max Irwin and very amusing. Written by Percy Hall and remains at the Plymouth for the remainder of the week.

"Les Miserables," in motion pictures, continues at Tremont Temple. These pictures are attracting wide attention.

The Ninety and Nine Castle Square Bill

One of the strongest of the plays that will never die, "The Ninety and Nine," by Ramsay Morris, was played to a good house last evening at the Castle Square Theatre. Its gripping pathos and tragic reality made it of intense emotional interest, and the whole performance was characterized by brilliant acting and stirring situations.

The rural melodrama, which portrays the elevating influence of woman's love in saving a man from a drunkard's grave, was cast as follows: Tom Silverton, William P. Carleton; Rod Bryson, Donald Monk; Mark Beversham, Frederick Ormonde; "Burton's" Red, Carney Clarisse; Amos Blake, George Ernest; Milt Green, Russell Clarke; Liga McLane, Alfred Hunt; Dave, Master Sawyer; Gene Hargrove, At Roberts; Frank Baillie, J. Morrill Morrison; Sam Grant, Robert Capron; Ruth Blake, Nan Gibson; Rachel Blake, Hazel Cobcord; Kate Van Dyke, Annie Vaysleer; Mrs. Bobby Dougherty, Bertha Miller; Mrs. Aramantha Markham, Augusta Gill.

Mr. Carleton made a sympathetic Silverton, the boss. His acting was always appealing. Miss Gibson was attractive as Ruth, the heroine, while Mr. Monk's Rod Bryson was a creation. It was tragically powerful. Mr. Ormonde, Mr. Ernest, Mr. Clarke, Miss Cobcord and others pleased.

Grand Opera House.

The new show at the Grand Opera House yesterday was supplied by "The Sunshine" Burlesquers. It was a girlie show, with much emphasis.

Harvard Squad in First Scrimmage

Coaches Plan to Whip Varsity into Shape for Game with Maine Saturday

By SYDE LINES.

AFTER the division of the squad into a varsity and second teams, and a staff signal drill, the Crimson Knights of the Pigskin were all ready today for the first scrimmage of the year and its concomitant bruises, bumps, bliss and scratches, to say nothing of unconsciences which will doubtless follow in its wake. A good stiff scrimmage today and the following two days will alone suffice to whip the team into shape, to give any kind of a respectable exhibition against the fast Maine team Saturday, after all the display that the scribes have been handing to Coach Haughton and proteges. Certainty if the work given the men yesterday is to be any criterion of what is going to happen to them in practice this year, there are hard times ahead for the wearers of the Crimson jerseys.

The second team squad, composed of about forty-five men sufficient to make up four perfectly good teams, had already had one day of hard scrimmaging when the varsity flew at their throats today and let loose all the pent-up energy of nine months. The second team does not mind this sort of thing, however, for when a man is put on the second squad he knows that he is to be the bunt of the varsity for the rest of the year, and the rather questionable glory that goes with it. A consoling thought for the second team is, however, in case the varsity goes through a championship season, the former can gloat over the fact that but for stiff work they gave the first eleven, said first team might not have been so good.

FIRST LINEUP A SURPRISE.

A NUMBER of surprises were sprung in the first lineup of the varsity, but this first lineup is not necessarily the final one, and doubtless the makeup of the eleven will be somewhat different at the end of the season.

The first lineup of the eleven was as follows: re., Dana; rt., Storer; rg., Peabody; c., Trumbull; lg., Cowen; lt., Hitchcock; le., O'Brien; qb., Logan; rhb., Hardwick; lhb., Brickley; fb., Willetts. Two other teams are being formed to run through signals and all will be given their opportunity in different permutations to show their worth. The original formation of the varsity, however, is interesting.

Dana at right end looks very good at this stage of the game. He is a rangy fellow, tipping the scales at around the one-eighty mark, and a quick starter on all occasions. Whether he will be the man for the position is a question in our minds. Gardiner has only just come out, and it is likely that he will receive a pretty thorough drilling at the hands of the end coach, Lee Leary, before he be given any responsible work to do, for judging from the adaptability he has shown in past years, he should be the choice for the end opposite to Frank O'Brien.

COWEN AN UNCERTAINTY.

WITH the exception of Cowen at left guard, there is no reason to look for any change in the line, unless some of the men suffer the loss of an eyetooth or something else equally serious, in which contingency—and we sincerely trust that nothing so horrible will happen—substitutions will be necessary. But let that time take care of itself.

Cowen looks mighty good. He, too, is a big, rangy chap, well over a hundred and eighty pounds, and in the practice lineup of the eleven he moved around pretty fast. He is still young, and doubtless feels a little skittish on the varsity squad, but with experience he should make a first-class lineman. He has a build a great deal like Tobin, the old Dartmouth whirlwind at guard. And signed with Peacock and Trumbull help in forming one of the best center trios on the college gridiron this season.

MAHAN WILL GET A PLACE.

THE backfield with Hardwick, Brickley and Willetts as the three running backs looked good, but it seems fairly certain that either Bradlee or Mahan, more than likely the latter, will be fitted into the combination in the place of Willetts. These two men are at present behind Hill out at quarter, and Bradlee is showing up in decidedly good style. He takes very readily to his new work, keeping his backs on the jump and pivoting himself alert and active at all times. Logan out at quarter in the first lineup, but this will hardly be permanent, as he is a very powerful man in handling the ball. Ever since his schooldays he has had a bad fault of fumbling, and does not seem to be able to break himself of it. Freedley would probably have been doing the work, but he is keeping under cover for a couple of days with a sore throat. Nothing serious, but one ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. When Bradlee gets more into shape he will probably be given command of the first eleven.

McKissock and Bettle proved themselves to be the second choices of the coaches in case Hardwick or Brickley are substituted in a game, being placed on team B in the signal work.

THE VARSITY SQUAD.

THE following thirty-eight men have been picked for the varsity squad: H. R. Amory, 14; H. M. Atkinson, '15; R. S. Bettle, '14; F. G. Bradlee, '15; C. E. Brickley, '15; I. J. Coolidge, '15; R. R. Michigo Wins First Yacht Race

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Michigo, the Chicago Yacht Club Class P sloop, was successful in the first of three races, defending the Manhasset Cup. Michigo, which won the cup last year on Long Island Sound, finished the sixteen miles in 2:51:28, nearly three minutes ahead of the Stranger, the Rhode Island Yacht Club challenger, which finished third in 2:54:27.

South Shore, entered by the South Shore Country Club of Chicago, was second, 22 seconds behind the Michigo. Olympian, Lincoln Park Yacht Club, Chicago and the Manchineen, Jackson Park, Y. C., Chicago, were fourth and fifth.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. G. MITCHELL

WALSH and Scott will pitch against the Red Sox this afternoon, according to the plans of Manager Callahan. The leader of the Chicago team expressed himself today as being highly pleased at the improvement in Big Ed and looks for him to be his old self next season. It is said that Walsh, who recently pitched part of one game, his first appearance in several months, does not venture to use his spitball but relies on his speed and change of pace to pull himself through these days. Of course he makes the bluff to moisten the ball, but that is as far as he goes, according to those who ought to know. But even at his worst Walsh is a hard man to beat and the Red Sox cannot afford to hold him too lightly when they face the pink-checked man from Meriden, Conn., today.

SCOTT is another pitcher who has usually been successful against the Red Sox. Against one Chicago pair Carrigan is likely to send Collins and Leonard. Collins is going at his best clip and should be a hard man to beat no matter who goes to the box for the visitors.

THE White Sox have only six more games to play after leaving here. Two of these are with the Browns at Chicago and the other four are with the Tigers at Detroit. The Red Sox have a little over Callahan's men in the percentage of games won and if Callahan counts on finishing in fourth place he must to up and doing this afternoon.

DOES the oldest baseball inhabitant remember when the rain fell for four days running in the baseball season as it has done here in Boston these last few days?

CATCHER DALY of the Lowell Club reported to Manager Callahan, of the White Sox yesterday. It is expected that he will be in a Chicago uniform this afternoon and may catch one of the games. Callahan hasn't had a chance to talk with the new man, for when Daly reported the manager was busy and told him he would talk with him out at the grounds. Later the game was postponed and the two did not meet again.

THE members of the Red Sox spent the afternoon playing cards in the clubhouse. Pinochle is the game they are playing now. Poker and auction pitch are relegated to the scrap heap. Styles change in card games as in headgear and collars.

"HAL CHASE is playing great ball for me," declares Callahan. "And he is even-tempered a man as I have ever met. I have not had the slightest trouble with him and I don't know he's around until he pulls off one of his stunts on the ball field."

THE Boston Nationals took a firmer hold on fifth place by their victory over the Cards, while the Brooklyns remained idle on account of wet grounds. They final series at the South End grounds the last of next week, between the Pilgrims and Dodgers, may settle the championship of the second division.

THE Red Sox management arranged the details of the post-season series between the Red Sox and Boston Nationals over the long distance telephone yesterday, President Gaffney of the Nationals being on the other end of the line. It was decided to start the series on the same day that the world's series begins and alternate on the two grounds, with the Saturday game—if there is one—at Fenway Park.

Yale Squad Rests for Wesleyan Game

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 23.—Yale will rest up today and only light work will be ordered, so as to keep the men in condition for their opening game of the season with Wesleyan tomorrow. Quarterback Cornell has quit the hospital but it is doubtful if he will be able to get into the opening game.

Captain Ketcham has received word that Heffelfinger will arrive September 29 for a week and that Tom Shevlin will come October 1 for several days. Both will make the jump from Minneapolis for the purpose of helping Yale.

Yale has uncovered a brand new drop kicker in the person of Ben Markle, the varsity substitute halfback of last season.

Brookline Boys in Dartmouth Line

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 23.—As the result of injuries sustained by Rogers and Hinman, the two veteran Dartmouth linemen, Colby and Kimball, both of Brookline, have been moved up from the second to first eleven. These lads are not permanent, however, as it is expected the two regulars will return to the lines shortly.

Coach Dave is alternating with Llewellyn in running the first team. Coach Cavanaugh's idea apparently being to develop the two men equally from day to day so that the team may be accustomed to taking orders from either one or the other.

Incognito's Score 139.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Opening a match with the Philadelphia Cricket Club today, the Incognito Club of London scored 139 runs in its first innings.

K. O. Brennan Wins.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 23.—Knockout Brennan of Buffalo outpointed Tommy Ferguson of Scranton here.

RED SOX AND CHICAGO PLAY DOUBLEHEADER

The Chicago White Sox will make their last appearance of 1913 at the Fenway Park this afternoon. The occasion will be marked by a doubleheader with the Red Sox, which will be the final games between the two clubs this season.

The Red Sox have been idle for four days as the result of the heavy rain and are prepared to travel at their fastest today. They believe they need two good hard games, as the competition will serve to fit them for the Champion Athletics, who come here for their final series beginning tomorrow.

If Ray Collins and "Dutch" Leonard show the proper kind of form in the "warming up pen," they will be the men selected to pitch for the Red Sox. Carrigan can use any of his pitchers for that matter, as all have had a good rest, but he prefers these two, as they have had the longest waits.

Ed Walsh and "Death Valley" Jim Scott will hurl for the Windy City aggregation. The announcement by Callahan that Walsh would pitch one of the games caused no surprise, as it is believed the big fellow has rounded into good shape once again. He is not in perfect condition, but Callahan is carefully grooming him for the city series, which creates more interest in Chicago than the world's series.

The White Sox cannot overtake the Red Sox today, but by winning both ends of the double bill they will be very close on the heels of the Boston team.

Ginty Defeats Houck.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Tommy Ginty of Scranton defeated Willie Houck at the Olympia Athletic Club in an unsatisfactory bout.

STALLINGS AND CREW HEADED FOR PHILLY

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 23.—The Pilgrims are now on their way to Philadelphia, where they open a seven-game series, beginning tomorrow. The seven games will be played in four days.

With his pitching staff going at top speed, George Stallings is confident that he will hold on to fifth place until the finish. In three games against the Cardinals, Jack Quinn, George Tyler and Otto Hess handed out but two runs off the two southpaws, while Quinn hurled the shut-out game. Pitching is the greatest advantage for any club, and Stallings is lucky in having his staff in perfect trim to keep the Brooklyn Dodgers down below them.

Then, on top of this, Stallings has hit youngsters showing exceptional speed and fight on the ball field. They never let up for a single second, and after each play leave the ball around the diamond. The change in the Pilgrims is marvelous, and the day when the Boston club was a soft mark for the rivals is gone by, probably never to return. It looks as if St. Louis will supplant the Pilgrims as the tailenders in the National League.

Although Hugg no took charge of a team that finished sixth in 1912, and followed it to drop last this year, he will be back as manager in 1914. Magnate Britton believes Huggins will get a winner for him, and will give him another year. But Huggins will have to follow Stallings's policy of getting rid of the supposed stars and buy some class AA material if he hopes to succeed.

Stallings took charge of nothing and has bright prospects for the future. Huggins has nothing in front him but a tailender.

"WHITE HOPE" CARL MORRIS THINKS HE'LL EVENTUALLY MAKE GOOD IN THE RING

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

CHICAGO WHITE SOX MAKE LAST APPEARANCE OF 1913 AT FENWAY PARK TODAY

Conditions of Play Perfect--- Francis Ouimet

Written expressly for the Boston AMERICAN by the new golf champion of the United States.

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

THE course at the Brookline Country Club is one of the finest in America, being second only to Myopia.

Its layout shows years of careful work and study on the part of the golf committee and the placement of traps is very fine.

The ground is rolling, though not what one would call hilly, and the surroundings are most picturesque.

During the past week, in the earlier part, the weather was ideal. No wind blew, the sun shone, and everything was in the players' favor.

But on Thursday, though no rain fell, the atmosphere was very heavy, making both the fairway and putting greens very slow.

RAIN MADE COURSE EASIER.

Friday rain fell and also on Saturday. Some may think that this must have made the playing very difficulty, but I believe that it made it easier.

My reason for thinking so was that shots, especially iron ones, could be played well to the pin and the player knew that there was little or no chance for the ball to run any great distance after it hit on the green.

In fact, in some cases, the ball did not run at all, imbedding itself in the water-soaked greens.

An instance of this was on the tenth hole, when one of America's best professional golfers pitched to within three feet of the tenth hole in one. Instead of having an easy putt for a two he was compelled to play a niblic for his second. All he could do was to chop the ball out of the hole it had made. So much mud stuck to the ball in removing it that it was impossible to hole his next and he had to be contented with a four for the hole. This was an awful penalty to suffer for a fine shot.

Yet you can see what a distinct advantage it was to have your ball strike right, provided it did not stick, since it made the approach putt much easier, being nearer the hole.

GREENS IN SPLENDID SHAPE.

The greens were in splendid shape, being very fast during the qualifying rounds, and slower the days the championship was played.

The fairway stood up splendidly and few had reason to complain of bad lies. The turf was cut by irons digging their way through after hitting the ball.

The men who handled the crowd watching the play deserve a great deal of credit for the masterly way they did it. Few people realize how hard it is to keep enthusiastic watchers from running wild, but the flag men, shouting words of advice through megaphones, should come in for a little thought on the part of those who saw the play.

I doubt if there was a single man who helped out the golf committee in its stupendous task but what was glad when the great event had been concluded.

Morris Sure He Will Make Good in Ring

Oklahoma Giant Tells Why He Became a "White Hope"; May Fight in Boston

By JACK CONWAY.

CARL MORRIS, the young man who got Sapulpa, Okla., on the map, declares that he is real champion of the white heavyweights. The Western giant is now in Boston and is making some easy money as doing a little act before the footlights at a vaudeville theatre.

The writer interviewed Morris today. It is Morris' first visit to Boston and I expected to meet a body battered giant. Instead I found that Carl has few marks to show that he is a boxer.

The Oklahoma man is a huge fellow, being six feet four in his hat and weighing 250 pounds. He has a pair of snappy brown eyes and dark brown hair.

Morris does not look like a fighter, while he does look like an Englishman in his conversation. He resembles a fullback on a college eleven more than a boxer and hopes to prove that he is the best white heavyweight in the game.

Morris is 31 years, seven months of age and has been earning a livelihood by the power of his fists since about after Jim Jeffries was defeated by Jack Johnson at Reno in July, 1910.

"BOSTON STREETS A PUZZLE"

"IN the course of his talk with the writer Morris said.

"Boston is a great city and I like the people though I must admit that I do not folllk a great deal of its streets. I should be unable to find my way around the city if I did not have the assistance of friends.

"I will protect Gibb will, as I said before weight at the Mass A. A. the first part of October. I am sure that I will prove to the satisfaction of Boston fans that I am the best white heavyweight in the business.

"I have been performing very well lately. I have won my last four bouts by knockouts. I stopped Al Benedict in five rounds. Morris Gerber in two rounds. Fred McKay in three rounds, while I put Al Reich to sleep in two rounds.

"During my career in the ring I have engaged in twenty-eight battles and have won twenty of them by knockouts, inside of six rounds. Therefore I can assure that I am a good performer.

"Many people have asked me whether I believe I am a Goliath to Smith's master. I wish to state that I am sure that I would be able to whip Smith as he is a rude boxer and the only thing which he possesses is a wild, kim kong note.

"I do not think I shall ever have to battle Smith as Sam Langford will probably put Smith's protege in the discard in Madison Square Garden on Friday night. Langford is a real fighting terror and I consider him the greatest heavyweight in the world. He is also the world's heavyweight champion title if he can get Jack Johnson into a ring with him.

"JOHNSON HAS GONE BACK."

"JOHNSON has gone back a great deal during the past few years and I am confident that I would be able to defeat him if I were in good condition.

"I am open to meet any of the white heavyweights and nothing would please me better than a bout with Frank Moran. I have been promised a match with the winner of the Palzer-Willis go in New York and should not experience much difficulty in defeating either of these men.

"Why do you fight?' I have been asked this question hundreds of times. Personally I do not care to get battered up any more than anybody else does. I fight because fighting is an excellent business, provided you are a star fighter.

"I made a mistake when I started in the game as a white hope. I work quite hard at my business. I can make $500 or $1,000 in a few minutes in the ring. That is why I am not driving a truck. One day when my days of fighting are over I am going into some kind of useful business that as long as I live I will not be classed as a bum.

RICHO AND "BIG BOY" BOUT

SAM LANGFORD and Jack Richo are training at Red Hill, North Reading. The latter is scheduled to clash with Young Smith in New York Friday night. Langford, Woodman says, is confident that Richo will be a different man of the New York battle a few weeks ago. Woodman will make a great fight for Richo, who is going to make this go. Richo is reading fighting is to him.

PLAN BOUTS FOR LANGFORD

WOODMAN is planning several bouts for Langford at Kane's "gym" with Smith Friday night he will probably go West to engage in a contest in Kansas City, Cambridge before Sam goes abroad. Another bout at the Mass A. A. is to be arranged for December. Langford is anxious to be matched to meet Morris and it is expected he will be decided in Paris on December 20.

Small and Light Squad for Brown

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 23.—At the end of the first week's preliminary practice the Brown football squad still remains extremely small and light, though several heavy men who are at present taking "exams" are expected to report the coming week.

From present indications it looks as though Coach Robinson will have to weld together practically a whole new team. Captain Dave Henry, Staff Mitchell and Bean are the only veterans out. The backfield, especially, is giving the new men much trouble, as no one has yet appeared to fill Kid Crowther's shoes, the stellar All-American quarter back, who graduated last June, though Bine and Murphy have been running the team with a lot of snap. Chaney, who had trouble to make up exams last Fall, is again back and looks good for one of the halfback positions. Moose Jennes, star halfback of the last two Brown teams will not be back this Fall, having entered the North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College of Raleigh, N. C.

The following faculty members of the council were assigned to supervise other fall sports: Professor Charles E. Bolser, football, Professor Charles P. Lingley, baseball hockey and basketball, Professor Charles F. Proctor, track, tennis, Gun Club and golf.

Pierce Only "Vet" on B. C. Eleven

Coach Harrigan of the Boston College High School team is having a hard time to whip his squad in shape for next Saturday's game with Wayland High. Captain Pierce is the only veteran in the squad, but several of the men show up well in practice. Among those are J. O'Connor and T. Kearns, tackles; Pierce and Nagle, ends, and Flaherty and McDonald, backs.

Following is the revised schedule arranged:

Sept. 27, Wayland High at Wayland; Oct. 7, Boston Latin School at Boston; Oct. 11, Hyde Park High at Roxbury; Oct. 18, Cambridge Latin at Cambridge; Oct. 25, St. John's Prep. at Dorchester; Nov. 1, Allen School at Newton; Nov. 15, Roxbury High at Dorchester.

Several other games are being negotiated for.

37 Players on Red Sox Reserved List

Thirty-seven players have been reserved by the Red Sox. They are: William J. Carrigan, manager; Joe Wood, H. Howard Edward Kelly, E. L. Cady, W. J. DayseyMaymeand Her Folks

No one in this world is accused, tried, convicted and hung quite as often as the husband, and no one ever goes as often to the gallows in ignorance of what he did that sends him there.

He looks up from his newspaper and finds his wife looking reproachfully at him, and though he knows not what he has done, or is doing, he feels the noose tightening around his neck.

He wakes up gayly and goes off to work jubilantly, and returns merrily and meets frigidity, and it is not till he has swayed at the end of the rope for a week that he learns his offence was neglect to kiss his wife goodbye.

He forgets it is her birthday, and passes over the anniversary of the day when he first met her without a sign of recognition and swings for it. Sweetly determined to be above fault finding and to suffer in silence, his wife never calls attention to his faults in the commission. She assumes the role of the silent martyr instead.

Lysander John Appleton is so accustomed to the noose that when he entered his home the other evening he was not surprised to find his wife in tears. He did not know what he had done to offend. He wondered with a sigh if he had done anything. She sobbed when she took up the dinner, and tears dropped in big gobs on the tablecloth when she served the soup. He looked to Daysey Mayme for an explanation, and found her countenance was also tear-soaked. Her eyes swam in tears like two oysters in a saucer of brine, and when she tried to eat she choked with emotion.

"What," he asked nervously, "is the matter?"

Daysey Mayme looked at her mother, and from the eyes of each woman there flashed a look of resentful understanding that resembled in the prevailing dampness a flash from a lighthouse blurred by the rain.

"Is somebody dead?" he asked, more apprehensive.

"No, but there ought to be," both replied, turning their eyes on Lysander.

Lysander John felt better. It is some thing to know why one is to be hanged, a consolation not always granted the husband.

"You are responsible," from his wife. "I have cried like this all day," from his daughter.

"If you had any consideration for us, you wouldn't like them," from his wife. "It's a vulgar taste, any way," from his daughter.

"But what have I done?" from the bewildered Lysander John.

"You said you wanted home-made pickles, and we have been Pealing Onions all day!"

Hair Grew 4 Inches in a Few Weeks

A St. Louis Lady Increased the Length of Her Hair Four or Five Inches in a Few Weeks with This Simple Home Recipe.

A well-known St. Louis lady, after using a simple recipe on her hair which she mixed at home, made the following statement: "Without exaggeration, my hair has grown four or five inches. The recipe she used is as follows, and any lady or gentleman can mix it at home: To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the scalp one or three times a day with the tips of the fingers. It not only promotes the growth of the hair, but removes dandruff, scalp humors and prevents the hair from falling out.

It darkens streaked, faded, gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. These ingredients can be obtained from any drug store at very little cost and mixed at home. Adv.

The Secret of Eternal Youth and Beauty

As Told by Fascinating Dorothy Webb

I Want to Stay Young

By MAUDE MILLER

Don't you love youth? Don't you want to be young and feel young and look young? Haven't you always felt the utmost sympathy with Ponce de Leon in his search for the Fountain of Perpetual Youth? And of course there was a slightening around your heart strings at the thought of Peter Pan, the boy who did not want to grow up! Well then you must love dear little Dorothy Webb, the girl who does not want to grow up either.

"I want to stay young. I want to be buoyant and youthful always. And since just wishing does not accomplish much in these days, when all the fairies are banished, I have planned how to go about being young—always young." So began my chat with the golden-haired actress who brings the spell of youth and gayety into your hearts.

"Dear Daughter Dorothy" is a fitting title to the happy girl who greeted me with such charming ease that I was her friend almost before I had found myself all "comfy" in the chair she piloted me to in her pink and white dressing room. Youth was in the air—in the simple fittings of the room in the little knickknacks and souvenirs of which a part of Miss Webb's eager interest focuses itself.

THE SECRET

"To keep young I think you simply must FEEL YOUNG. And that is a matter of habit! Take a keen interest in everything. There are so many things to enjoy out of doors. Go out and enjoy them! You know NATURE OFFERS HER ENTERTAINMENTS AND PLEASURES FREE OF CHARGE.

"If you want to have the magnetic and fashionable beauty of youth, then I insist that you must cultivate the habit of enjoying. Don't want all the big things! Don't miss the little ones. Don't make up your mind that you want the moon and won't be happy till you get it. If you can't have the moon try a tiny star instead. What I mean is life is full of little pleasures; learn to take your enjoyment from them.

"Think how much pleasure a child gets from scuffing the leaves on a Fall day, or in donning rubber boots and wading through the puddles when it rains. Learn to find delight in rain or sunshine—Summer or Winter. Every season and every type of day has a treasure to yield.

"If you love Nature and her free-for-all pleasures, you will naturally keep out of doors. Then you will acquire a feeling of youth.

"I am careful of my diet because with impaired digestion or with more pounds accumulating than it is comfortable to carry life is not enjoyable. I am careful to get enough sleep and rest so that when I am awake I will be truly awake and ready to enjoy life. Relaxation is a great tonic. To learn to relax is almost as important a rule as to learn to enjoy. Given a pillow I can take a wee cat nap anywhere if I am tired and in need of a sleep-tonic.

ANOTHER HELP

"If it is hard for you to relax, try this. Lie flat on your back, put your arms at your sides, and accept your mind with how rested you feel, how you are sinking, sinking through the couch that is holding you so lightly. Forget everything but just your own physical sensations of comfort. Also soon you will be comfortable and rested.

"I believe I divide my idea of keeping young into three parts. LEARN TO ENJOY. If you can't have big things, want all the little things you can have correspondingly hard. LEARN TO RELAX. Get the utmost good out of the blessings of sleep and rest, and don't overdraw on your bank account of youthful vitality. And here is my final rule. DO EVERY LEAST LITTLE THING YOU HAVE TO DO JUST AS WELL AS YOU KNOW HOW. You'll be better off, too good for any thing you set about accomplishing. If you are enjoying what you do and doing it as well as you know how, there is no such thing as an unsuccessful life in the world.

"Don't you think my theory works out fairly well for me?" asked Miss Webb naively. Youth is so fashionable and all fascinating things it is the most only exquisitely comfortable one. Indeed and indeed, it is worth while studying out ways to be a little Miss Peter Pan.

And please let us write our bankers chiefs to show that we do believe in the good faiths of interest and favor and Doing Your Best. For so we may all be Little Peter Pans or Perpetual Youth.

Little Bobbie's Pa

Pa went to a clambake once which he was gave by the lodge with he belongs to, & Ma & me went to a show, because we knew it wud be quite late wen Pa got home. He had on a new hat eggcept sum cigars that he wud be hoam from the clambake beefore we got hoam from the show, but Ma knew she wud win the bet. Ma is a good better, too, she found out wich was the longest show so as to give Pa all the chanst in the world to win his bet she knew he wud loose it anyway.

The show was a awful sad play. It tcold about a man wich had got rich from robbing his partner & how his partner died of a broken heart & how a few yeers later he fell in luv with a beautiful gurl & the gurl didnot let him know she was the partner's daughter. She lured him along until he had got so crazy about her that he wud lay down his life for her, & she tould him she wud marry him if he wud fly with her & leave his wife, & wen he was all reddy & had promised to go she opened the door & there was his wife lisening to every word & then the wife quit him & the gurl mocked him.

It matiks me feel awful sad. Bobbie, sed Ma, I dount like to think of a married man leeding so deceeving. I do hope your father was true at the clambake & that he is at hoam now waiting for us. Let us go now, sed Ma.

That wuddent be fair, sed me to Ma, beekaus you bet that you wud stay for the whole show beefore you went hoam. So Ma stayed, but I dount think she liked the show much, there was too much in it about married men beeing careless.

At last the show was over & Ma & me got in a taxi & went hoom. Your father is hoam, I am sure, Ma kep saying. He wuddent stay out late like this to any clambake.

But wen we got hoam Pa wasent thare, & he didcot cum in for two hours after we got hom. Wen he cam he was feeling grate, he kep telling Ma how refreshing it is to put in a day in the open air. Clambakes is very invigorating, Pa sed, three cheers for the clam & three for the man wich maiks them.

You seem to have had a good time, sed Ma. She was looking at Pa kind of hard.

Glorus, sub-lime, sed Pa. & why shud it not be a glorus & sub-lime time wen we was brothers all, linked together by the glorus fraternity of which we are fraternal members? Boomy, sed Pa, three cheers for the members of fraternal fraternity, Pa sed. We rite our brothers' faults on the sands, Pa sed, & rite their virtues on the tablets of love & memory, as Hubbard onst sed. Yip!

Please dount malk so much noise, sed Ma. I will never let you go to a other clambake if you cum hoam & have all the nabors rapping on the steem pipes. Please be still.

One of my loving brothers wud never talk to me that way, sed Pa. Loving brothers is always fraternal and fraternity is always loving, Pa sed. What a noobel thing to rite our brother's faults on the sands, Pa sed.

You brothers may rite each other's faults there, sed Ma, but I bet yure wife dount. & I will bet St. Peter dount, eether. Now go to bed & have a fraternal sleep, sed Ma, & maybe after you have had sum fraternal brekfust you will be abel to go to business.

The Head Waitress

By HANK

"What does Marie look so grouchy about?" asked the Steady Customer of the Head Waitress in the Cafe d'Enfant. "Did some one short change her this morning?"

"I should say not," repiied the Head Waitress. "Anybody who wanted to short change her would have to be wiser than the ginks who come in here. I pity the poor guy who gets her for life. If he tries to put over any phony financial deals on pay night he'd find he's up against a regular John D. in skirts!"

"Well, what's the matter with her?" persisted the Steady Customer.

"Oh, she's sore about a little kidding we handed her," said the Head Waitress. "She's been telling some of the girls around here about horseback rides she's been taking in the park every morning, and while nobody was so unladylike as to call her a liar, we just noted as if that well-known bloke named Sweeney might believe her a little better than we did. So to make her story look like the genuine goods, she brings a bunch of photographs into the place the other day with herself posed in all kinds of positions like Josie of Ark and a fine looking horse as a background. The pictures made a hit all right until one of us happened to notice a policeman's club sticking in the back of the saddle. Of course this showed that one of them handsome cops was trying to capture her young affections, and the horseback riding story died without a groan."

"I'm surprised to hear that about Marie," said the Steady Customer, "but brass buttons do hold some peculiar fascination for the average female."

"Fascination ain't the word for it," replied the Head Waitress. "It's clean dippy they get. You see, out in the financial district Marie comes from, they don't have no guys in brass buttons except the motormen, and they're so poor out there that almost every other fellow is one of them ordinary bone kind. I don't see how Marie could ever have fallen for a cop. I wouldn't marry a cop for fear that some time or other he might bring home a few friends to dinner like Bob the Biffer, Sam the Sling or Crafty Charlie and Dick the Dip. But then Marie is at the ingenious age."

"I suppose you mean ingenuous," said the steady Customer.

"There you go spoiling our nice little intimate with your personal remarks," said the Head Waitress scornfully. "Here's your check."

"Well, Marie," said the Steady Customer to the lady cashier as he stepped to the desk, "so the glint of brass buttons has dazzled your beautiful eyes, has it?"

"If you don't stop that breeze of yours," replied Marie emphatically, "your beautiful orbs will have a black rim around them from a punch Bobbie's got, and don't you forget it. Please use the nearest exit on going out."

A Glad Relief

"Thank heaven, these bills are got rid of," said Bilkins fervently, as he tore up a bundle of statements of accounts dated May 1.

"All paid, eh?" said Mrs. Bilkins.

"Oh, no," said Bilkins. "The duplicates dated June 1 have come in, and I don't have to keep these any longer."

HOW RUDE!

The occupants of the railroad carriage were listening with lurid interest to the tales of the young man in the corner. He had been all over the world several times, apparently, and his adventures had been marvelous.

"Coolness and courage are the things," he was saying. "Take this case. We were in Central Africa, traveling among cannibal tribes. One evening, above a rock in front of me, I saw the heads of three natives who were watching me. What was I to do? My gun was at the camp. To turn back meant having spears through me. In a moment I decided. Close by were some stones. Pretending I didn't see the niggers, I bent down as if to examine the stones. Quick as lightning, I picked up three of them and flung them with all my force at their heads. Everyone found its mark, and the three natives dropped like sheep. I always take a good aim, and it served me well then."

Then the red-faced man opposite, who had been listening carefully, chimed in: "Ah! wot did yer win, guv'nor, a cigar or a packet of cigarettes?"

Swift & Company's Sales of Fresh Beef in Boston for the week ending Saturday, Sept. 20, averaged 12.70 cents per pound.

Beatrice Fairfax Writes on:

Bread and Cheese and Kisses

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Had the young man who wrote the following letter searched the language from A to Z he could not have found more words more expressive of desolation, abandonment and grief than he has used in his signature. Broken-hearted Foreign Lover.

A hopeless and lonely wanderer in the Kingdom of Love, he is also an alien in a strange land, away from home and friends, and with little money.

I can deeply sympathize with a young girl two years my junior. She says she loves me very much, but she says she doesn't think it advisable to keep company with me until I earn more. I am getting six and a week, with no prospects of soon getting more. I love her very much and would not like to lose her.

And I do not want him to lose her, for without the woman loves the man he or she loves, something sacred and sweet is gone out of life that is never replaced. I do not blame the girl for wishing him well and ambitious instead of unambitious. There is much sympathy and inspiration.

Their love might survive the separation that would be necessary while he was working for two, but it is too priceless to be risked. In his fatherland women wait and cheer and help, and might seem cheerful, but now it would be of strange use to people.

A HOPE

I hope he will not let his heart to hard like girl to a long engagement, always so unfair to the one who must wait. Some one of waiting. I hope he will put thoughts of love aside and go to work earnestly and intelligently, realizing to the little girl who is always kind to those who hold love tenderly to keep her heart for him till he is in position to claim it.

Maybe writes me: "I am twenty-two years of age. I have been keeping company with a young student for the past six months and we are engaged to be married. I was satisfied, because he is going to college and needs all the little money he has, until I learned that he was paying five dollars a month to the bank and that made me curious. Don't you think I should speak some of it to him, or is it none of my business?

Why, certainly, and looking at it from the standpoint of youth he should. But on the other hand, it is a well established fact that a man who will put his pay and keep it too. He is saving for the future, and undoubtedly he needs part of that money, and he is far away without a dream that it is for the future. The butterflies always had the advantage of the ants, but I am afraid that Margie, though twenty-two is still a great deal of a butterfly.

The men who command positions of trust and have money saved at thirty are those who have made themselves useful at an young men. This man is drawing himself more than he realizes, and he will be defeating himself the pleasure of her company, is risking her disappointment and knows it, and is risking that the competition may increase him and young men who are more in love with their savings is not to his credit.

FOR THE FUTURE

He is saving up for future need and chance and when one is young and amusements of all kinds mature a man stifled value, this denial is most unusual and commendable. The girl who is tested by a man of this kind is not the right object for her young friends at first sight of him.

Worried writes me: "I am keeping company with a boy of eighteen. I am of the same age. I show him to dog and kiss me every night before parting. Things are not right, and I have been told that he was in the Reformatory for some time, and my parents disapprove of him, though they do not know all that is going on between us. What kind of parents who do not know what a daughter is doing when a boy has discovered it first. And the world is merciless and uninviting.

The parent in any is always deplorable, and in this case it is more—it is dangerous. Such parents are often the most insistently negligent, and the kiss is the instinct. Her parents' disapprove of her associations with this young man, and then do righteously back, smugly content with themselves because they disapprove, and let the girl meet him night after night.

It takes something more than disapproval to save a girl. It takes ACTION. Read her letter, girls, and write.

A boy of eighteen has been paying attention to me for a week, and every night since we have met he tries to kiss me. I am only sixteen, and do not know him at all.

A girl of sixteen sitting in dark corners and fighting the advances of a boy she has known only a week is not going to think about. The poor little thing went love. It represents to them all that life offers, and with kissing, and with words no less unreasonable than they involve they begin their search of it at a dangerously early age. They do not know the peril of familiarity, and often to love degraded and made sordid and ground to death through lack of the first two and dragged in the mire through too much of the third!

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

There was a rather good tone to stock markets at the opening, although the local list was mixed as to price changes. The tendency was upward in New York, making the market as a whole. United Fruit was a strong stock here, gaining two points in an hour. There was not much trading in mines and the movement in coppers did not correspond to the large rise in quotations for warrants in London. Alaska Gold Mines was active and higher.

When the morning was half over in New York, Canadian Pacific was bidding most of its early gain. The market was quiet and had a narrow range. Union Pacific was unchanged and Southern Pacific a little higher. Reading was up ½ and Steel ⅛. Amalgamated was off ⅛, which figure showed the loss for American Can. People's Gas had lost its opening advance and stood at Monday's last quotation. Rock Island preferred was up ½ and Third Avenue ¾. California Petroleum had risen 1¼.

Traders were disposed to await news of what was done at the meeting of the Union Pacific directors tomorrow today. The motion question is pending.

Early Trend in New York.

A strong tone quickly developed in the New York market, where almost all of the leaders opened higher. Canadian Pacific was strong largely because of covering in London and rose 1¾ above Monday's final. People's Gas began ¾ higher at 129¾, which was within ¼ of its high record yesterday. It seemed later that a report about the issue in that certain Chicago interests are dissatisfied with the relations existing between the company and the municipality of Chicago and are pooling the stock to stimulate trading in it so that it may get back to Wall Street.

A number of issues were lower, including Rock Island, New York Central, Amalgamated, American Can, Atchison, St. Paul, California Petroleum and Chino. Steel began higher, then reacted. Union Pacific was unchanged at the outset, then gained fractionally. Reading, one of the bonners with Canadian Pacific and Peoples Gas by an early advance. Missouri Pacific, after opening unchanged, gained a trifle. St. Paul and New York Central recovered within the first hour.

The curb was steady.

Americans in London showed lack of outside interest.

Democrats Opposing President.

The first serious opposition from members of his own party which President Wilson has encountered appears to have developed in the Senate and over the Currency bill. Senators Hoke and Hitchcock are leading it in the Banking Committee. They are against "hasty" action. Senator Culberson was not present when it was proposed to make October 4, the last day for consideration of the measure. The other two Democrats voted with Republicans against the motion and it was defeated. This lineup indicates that the administration is going to have a great deal of trouble in getting currency legislation at this session.

Attorney Samuel Untermyer, who conducted the Money Trust investigation for the Pujo Committee, told the Banking Committee that the measure would end monopoly, curb speculation and make credits more stable and prices more reliable. Among the interesting statements made by the New York lawyer were the following:

"We are so dangerously near imperialism in finance in this country today that this bill is needed to lead us away from it.

"This measure will protect the banks of the country from the domination and control so long exercised by a New York group.

"Money for speculative purposes will not be so available as now. I favor this bill because I believe it will make the assets of the country liquid. I cannot understand how anybody passing upon this bill can assume that it will be impartially and despotically administered."

Senator Weeks said he thought provisions were beginning to see that the bill would close up most of the Fall, and added that he intended soon to call up his resolution to put the whole question over until the next session.

Tariff Bill Struck a Snag.

It is said that the administration's legislative managers have discovered that the enactment of the tariff bill would repeal all existing trade agreements made under the provisions of the Payne-Aldrich law and that a trade war might follow.

The pending bill provides for discriminatory rates against countries that do not treat the United States fairly. It is feared that foreign nations may at once impose penalties against the United States when the existing trade agreements automatically cease to exist.

To prevent the precipitation of what might lead to a trade war, the administration, through the State Department, is preparing a joint resolution that would have the effect of continuing all trade agreements for a period of four months. This period would give the administration the opportunity to negotiate new agreements.

This proposed joint resolution will not confine the Payne-Aldrich tariff rates, but will act as a notice to foreign countries that pending the negotiation of new agreements the retaliatory provisions of the new law will not be imposed against those who indicate their desire to enter into new trade arrangements.

United Fruit to Build Railway.

The United Fruit Company is going to operate upon land other than in an agricultural way and has planned to take over a concession for building the Trujillo Railroad in Honduras. The route of the road is through the Yoro River banana district and the concession will give United Fruit the subsidies given to locate and prove title to 250,000 acres of land for every kilometer of track laid. The tariff is to be acquired free on account of the richest banana and tobacco lands in Honduras. Valuable mineral rights and timber cutting privileges also go with the lands to be acquired by the construction of the road.

Already the right of way of the Trujillo road has been secured and work by contractors will be commenced on January 1 next. The road will be completed within two years and will be the first rail communication into the Honduran capital. A line thirty-seven miles long, built many years ago, extends from Puerto Cortes to San Pedro Sula.

The men who will have charge of this latest engineering feat will be those who have been working under Colonel George W. Goethals on the Panama Canal. They will leave for their new task as soon as they are relieved into Culebra Cut.

Locomotives, steam shovels, dump carts and several hundred miles of rails no longer needed on the Isthmus, have been purchased by the United Fruit Company from the United States government.

The 10,000 laborers from the Canal Zone will be used both in the construction of the new road and on the vast banana plantations owned by the company in Central America.

Financial News in Brief.

The London copper warrants market opened strong, spot being up 17s. 6d. and futures 15s.

Justice Lamar of the United States Supreme Court has refused to issue a restraining order to prevent the Alabama Railroad Commission from enforcing a 2½ cents a mile passenger rate in that State.

The net operating revenue of the Baltimore & Ohio increased $181,527 in August and $181,926 for the first two months of the present fiscal year. These figures do not refer to outside operations and, as estimated, will show a deficit in net in August, 1913, of $60,000, as compared with a deficit of $56,508.20 for August, 1912.

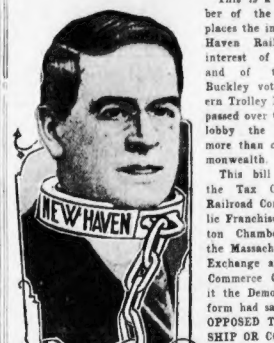
REP. JOHN H. BUCKLEY OF DORCHESTER



This is a Democratic member of the Legislature who places the interest of the New Haven Railroad above the interest of his constituents and of the State. Mr. Buckley voted for the Western Trolley Merger Bill which passed over to the New Haven lobby the trolley lines in more than one half the Commonwealth.

This bill was opposed by the Tax Commissioner, the Railroad Commission, the Public Franchise League, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange and the Interstate Commerce Commission. About it the Democratic party platform had said: "WE ARE OPPOSED TO THE OWNERSHIP OR CONTROL OF OUR STREET RAILWAYS BY STEAM RAILROADS, AND WE BELIEVE THAT IT SHOULD GO NO FURTHER IN THIS COMMONWEALTH."

Mr. Buckley, however, followed the lash of the New Haven Railroad and voted to pass this bill over the veto of the man whom his party had elected Governor.

A vote for a man like Buckley at the primaries cannot help the chances of election of Lieutenant-Governor Walsh and the other Democrats on the State ticket.

The Government Should Be More Potent, Not Less, In Its Control of the New Currency System

1

THE three great objects of the currency measure now before the United States Senate are

1. To provide, under Federal control, an elastic currency, that will expand or contract according to legitimate needs of trade and commerce, and prevent "panics."

2. To extend the operations of the national banks to the farmer or agriculturist, hitherto excluded from the benefits of the national banking system by the provision in the banking act forbidding loans on real estate.

3. To make the national banks more helpful to commerce, industry and production, instead of fostering, as they do now, speculation and monopolies.

The national banks are fighting the bill in its present form. They are in sympathy with the first object above.

But they are opposed to any legislation that will disturb the partnership between the big banks and the stock speculative operations at the money centres. The avowed purpose of the Owen-Glass bill is to break up this partnership. The bankers do not want that partnership disturbed.

They desire to perpetuate a fictitious, unscientific system, sanctioned by law, but condemned by experience and bitterly offensive to the American people—"a system which everybody knows encourages and promotes the wildest description of stock gambling," in the words of Chairman Glass in introducing the currency bill in the House.

HOW THESE OBJECTS ARE TO BE ATTAINED.

To provide for additional currency, and gradually to replace the more than $700,000,000 of national bank notes now in circulation, the Government proposes to establish twelve Reserve Banks. These banks will issue additional notes or currency, obligations of the United States, payable in gold or lawful money, in exchange for the notes of merchants, manufacturers and tradesmen. The Reserve Banks will also hold a large part of the reserves of all national banks, will rediscount the commercial paper of the individual banks, and fix the rate of discount or interest to be charged for such rediscounts.

But the new Federal Reserve Banks are expressly forbidden to rediscount notes based upon stock and bond transactions or Wall Street collateral.

This system will supply the ordinary needs of trade. It will encourage industry. It will facilitate legitimate business by making the rate of discount more stable. It will greatly facilitate the movement of the crops by a temporary increase in the volume of currency to pay for them without disturbing the money rates at industrial centres.

The Federal Reserve Banks are to be capitalized in this way: The 7,473 national banks, or as many of them as enter the new system, and as many of the 18,000 other banks and trust companies as apply for national charters, will each pay into the new Reserve Banks 10 per cent. of such bank's paid up capital. In addition, each bank will be required to keep in the Reserve Bank of its district a small percentage of its deposits.

3

WHY BANKERS DO NOT LIKE THE BILL.

They do not like it because the bill substitutes great PUBLIC RESERVOIRS OF CREDIT in place of the great PRIVATE RESERVOIRS now managed by private bankers.

Under the present system, a small bank needing currency applies to its "correspondent," a big bank in one of the reserve cities. In return for this accomodation, the small bank keeps at all times a part of its own reserves in the big bank.

The present law operates in this way: Under the existing bank statutes, there are only three central Reserve Cities in the United States. These are New York, Chicago and St. Louis.

Next to these central Reserve Cities the National Bank act names the forty-seven next largest cities in the country as Reserve Cities. The law requires all banks in Reserve Cities to keep nominally on hand in reserve at all times one-quarter of the total amount of their deposits. But the law permits every bank in every Reserve City to send one-half of its total reserve to the central Reserve Cities as a special deposit and still to count this special deposit as a part of its own reserves, exactly as if the cash was in its own vaults.

It is this system, which has gradually grown up under laws favoring the larger national banks, that enables six or eight banks in New York and Chicago to control so large a part of the bank reserves of the entire country that they practically control the credit situation.

It is the fund which furnishes constant fuel for the fevered speculation in Wall Street. A very large part of this reserve fund—three-fourths of it, according to experts—is loaned by the big banks from day to day on "call loans" for Wall Street operations.

This enormous fund also greatly facilitates loans to "Big Business." It aids the underwriting of the trusts. It facilitates all the operations of Organized Capital.

The country bankers that deposit their reserves with the big bankers are permitted to share in the profits of organizing trust, underwriting short-term notes of big corporations, etc.

Loss of the profits derived from a system which makes them the legal custodians of all the reserve funds of the country naturally vexes the big bankers, the High Financiers of New York and Chicago. Also many country bankers, their small partners.

The statement of the Comptroller of the Currency, on November 24 last, shows that TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY MILLION DOLLARS belonging to the depositors of the 7,473 national banks in all parts of the country were on that date in the custody of the big bankers of the central Reserve Cities, and were thus put into the maelstrom of Wall Street stock operations. It has thus come to pass that Wall Street is financed by the small depositors of banks in all parts of the country.

In the words of the authors of the Owen-Glass currency bill, "the whole fight of the great bankers is to drive us from our firm resolve to break down the artificial connection between the banking institutions of this country and the stock speculations at the money centres. The avowed purpose of the bill is to cure this evil."

4

ONE RESPECT IN WHICH THE MEASURE FAILS.

It fails utterly to provide an agricultural loan system.

There is no better security in the world than improved farms for long-term loans, and there is no other industry in the world so worthy of the fostering care of government as agriculture. The farms of the country not only sustain more than 20,000,000 of people, but the products of the farms feed the other 80,000,000.

Nothing is so important in this country as to stop the long-continued rise in the cost of living.

Food has risen in cost more than clothing or any other necessity of life.

The value of the American dollar compared with the prices of food has shrunk too far and too fast. It is not a tariff question, nor even a trust question, mainly, as Mr. Hearst has shown by comparing European prices with American.

Food has risen in cost much faster in the United States than in Europe; first, because our population has increased nearly twenty times as fast as the production of our farms; and, second, because the little farmer of Germany and France borrows money from local loan associations to improve his farm and increase its production, while our own national bank laws EXPRESSLY FORBID national banks to make such loans.

Thus it happens that the European farmer, borrowing money at less than 5 per cent., can improve his farm and increase his crops, while the American farmer, forced to deal with loan agents of associations not national banks, pays an average of 8½ per cent. for such loans (United States census figures). By intensive farming, thus made possible, the German and the French farmer produce twice as much per acre as the American farmer.

Cheaper loans for the farmer is the greatest of our agricultural needs. The total number of our farms is 6,000,000. The average farm has a mortgage debt of $500, and a current debt of about the same amount.

The farm land mortgages, according to the census figures, amount to $3,000,000,000.

The current loans to farmers on account of crops, chattels, etc., amount to $3,000,000,000 more.

To an exorbitant rate of interest charged for these loans are added recording fees, commissions for renewals and compulsory insurance, raising the total cost to more than 8½ per cent. annually—an interest bill of $510,000,000 a year. The total value of the entire wheat crop of the United States will barely pay this interest charge alone.

The farmer has the finest security for current loans, namely, products that go into immediate consumption and that sell in all the markets of the world every hour of the day. Yet he pays a rate double the rate paid by organized industries, and more than double the average rate paid for "call loans" in Stock Exchange operations in Wall Street. The farmer, who produces for others and benefits mankind, is put under a heavy burden. The stock gambler, who produces nothing, benefits nobody, works not at all—his path has been made easy for him by our Government's currency laws for fifty years.

Germany, a great and rapidly growing agricultural nation, has created, by government aid, associations of land credit, co-operative societies, syndicating their farm lands under negotiable bonds offered as security for the credit they need. This system has been in general use for more than one hundred years. It is not an experiment. The German farmer so obtains money for less than 5 per cent. The rate this year is about 4½ per cent.

In France, another great agricultural nation, there is an institution called the Credit Foncier. This institution started with government support, but does not now need government help. Up to the present time it has loaned to farmers more than two billion dollars, at rates varying, but always less than 5 per cent. The loans, moreover, are made from ten to seventy-five years and are retired in very small instalments year by year.

In this country we have savings banks with many billions of deposits drawing only 3½ per cent. We have Postal Savings Banks paying even less to the depositor. But the Government at Washington has never made an effort to work out a perfectly balanced system whereby the savings of the people throughout the country could be used to meet the needs of the producers of the country.

The greatest producing element in the country, namely, the small intensive farmer, should be the supreme object of the Government's fostering care.

The new currency bill removes the prohibition against loans upon farms by national banks, but it limits such loans to periods of one year. This very short and inadequate step will do little good, but it shows in what honest and right direction Congress is moving. Much longer and more radical steps must be taken before relief is had. No phase of our national currency problem is so important.

5

THE CURRENCY REFORM BILL IS SURE TO PASS CONGRESS.

Opposition to it by privilege and plutocracy will be futile.

The banks can insure its success, greatly improve its terms, and remove all difficulties, if they will only receive the bill in a hospitable spirit and recognize the principle behind it as an absolutely necessary and inevitable step in the country's progress.

The bankers object to Government control of the Federal Reserve Board.

Without that control no currency reform bill can pass Congress.

The proposed measure vests the entire supervision of the new banking system, i. e., the operations of the Federal Reserve Banks, in a Government board of seven members, all appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate.

The bankers demand the right to appoint three of the seven members of the Federal Reserve Board, leaving three to be appointed by the President, the seventh member to be the Secretary of the Treasury.

With such a board of control, it is probable that the banks—and not the Government—would control the entire system.

With three out of seven members actually named by the banks, it would be necessary, in order to make their control secure, to obtain the passive consent of only one of the other four members, and, if the future can be judged in the light of the past, the Secretary of the Treasury would in practice vote with the bankers in defense of bankers' profits and privileges.

As the national banks are to elect six of the nine directors of every one of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks, it is obvious that the Federal Board, having supervision and control of the entire system, should be a Government board. An advisory board of expert bankers might be helpful in the organization of the new system; but the final authority must repose in the Government. The Government should be more potent, instead of less, than the present bill proposes.

The Federal Reserve Banks will not compete in any way with individual banks. Each of these will conduct its own operations with its own customers, exactly as at present.

Bankers ought to ask no more. But the new Federal Reserve Banks will control, in the public interests, the distribution from the public reservoir of credit, created by the Reserve Banks, the reserves of the banks and the Government's general funds.

President Wilson is entitled to credit for adopting the Owen-Glass Currency bill and making it an administration measure. We assume that he will not for an instant consider the demand of the bankers that the Federal Reserve Board shall be constituted partly by the Government and partly by the banks. This board should represent the public alone.

6

WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF THE BANKS FIGHT THE CURRENCY ACT.

The authors of the bill do not venture the prediction that all the national banks will at once come into the fold.

The small country banks object to the breaking up of their relations with the big city banks. They object strenuously to the abolition of collection charges on checks which, under the new system, will be "cleared" through the Federal Reserve Bank of each district free of charge.

The big banks object strenuously, not to the little things, but to the paramount principles behind the bill, as we have stated.

Many amendments and improvements will be made in the bill in its progress through the Senate that will improve its workableness and remove unnecessary friction. But we hope that Senator Owen and his Democratic colleagues will stand like adamant against any merely reactionary amendment and against abandonment of any cardinal principles underlying this measure of currency reform.

Many national banks may refuse to adopt the new law. They will be free to do so. They may surrender their charters and become State banks. Many of the largest banks in several of the States now operate under State instead of national charters. There are only 7,473 national banks. But there are more than 18,000 State banks and trust companies. Under the new law all of these will be eligible to membership if they comply with the new law as to subscribing to the Reserve Banks and depositing in them a small part of their reserves.

If all the national banks in the country subscribe 10 per cent. of their capital, the twelve new Federal Reserve Banks will start with a capital of $100,000,000.

But these banks would at once become the Government depositories. If organized today, the Government's general fund deposited in them would amount to $135,000,000.

The Reserve Banks would be the sole fiscal agents of the Government. Deposits of special funds of the Government in them would raise the Government's contribution to the deposits to about $200,000,000.

The Government will, therefore, itself contribute to the available funds of the Reserve Banks, not only more than any other bank, but more than all the national banks put together.

No big banker, no high financier, wants to see the Government of the United States in the banking business AS A COMPETITOR. The only way in which they can keep the Government out of the banking business is to co-operate cheerfully and heartily in the just measure of currency reform to which the Government is now committed and which the public interests require.
